

County Groups Named to Study Electrification

Arlington Meeting Brings Action; People Have Say

By BURTON H. PECK

Morrow county was fairly represented in a rural electrification meeting held in Arlington Tuesday. Citizens from Wasco, Sherman, Gilliam and Morrow counties were present. The meeting was called to order by the mayor, who introduced Wm. Huck of Sherman county, who said in part that the movement for cheaper power was passing through an informative stage; that a power district composed of several counties would be more desirable than single county units; that it would not be desirable to use property security bonds to build lines or purchase utility holdings; that incorporated cities must apply for power separately from the districts at large. In Oregon 5% of the voters of an area may sign preliminary petitions to organize a peoples' utility district. The State Hydroelectric commission then holds formal hearings, makes a report, and on the filing of a second and final petition signed by 5% of the voters of the area an election is held to vote on organization of a district. The preliminary petition is not obligatory. The proposed district will have to provide a fund for making up the description of the district and having the petition printed. On its presentation, we understand, the state engineer will take charge and make a report.

It was indicated that a bill would be submitted to the voters at election, providing for revenue certificates to finance distributing systems. After informal discussion the chair appointed a temporary chairman from each county, who in turn named a county committee. For Morrow county the committee is B. H. Peck, chairman; R. B. Rice, E. E. Rugg, Oral Scott, Jeff Jones, Bert Mason and Jack Farris. This committee will hold a preliminary meeting at the Lexington Erosion Control meeting Feb. 3 and arrange for a county-wide meeting at Heppner at an early date.

Homemakers' Confab To be Feb. 8-11, OSC

Almost everything from "How to Buy Canned Foods," and "Types of Baking Powder," to "How to Listen to a Symphony Orchestra," seems to be on the menu for the several hundred homemakers who will attend the eighth annual Oregon Conference on Home Interests at Oregon State college, according to the program just released by Mrs. Azalea Sager, state leader of home economics extension. The dates set are February 8 to 11. The conference theme will be "The Home and the Community."

The affair will be handled somewhat the same this year as last, Mrs. Sager says, with all of the 700 or more women who are expected meeting together at certain times each day for general assembly programs, with the rest of the time being devoted to group meetings among which they may choose the ones in which they are most interested.

Among the outstanding speakers this year will be Mrs. Lydia Ann Lynde, parent education specialist from the extension service, Washington, D. C., and Miss Barbara Van Heulen of the Farm Credit administration at Washington, D. C. Miss Van Heulen will conduct a series of group meetings on family finances. Another speaker from the national capital will be Dr. Paul Williams of the bureau of economics, who will tell what the government is doing in the labeling of goods as an aid to consumer buyers.

Plenty of "extra-curricular" activities are being provided to insure the homemakers against any dull moments. In addition to the banquets, luncheons, funfests, swimming, campus tours, radio broadcasting, and one-act plays, they will

The conference proper will again be preceded by the annual meeting of the Oregon Home Economics Extension council, which will convene on the campus, Monday, February 7, and Tuesday morning, with most of the members remaining over for the rest of the week. Detailed programs and other information in regard to the conference are available at county extension offices, or direct from Mrs. Sager's office at Corvallis.

Eighty percent of the inmates of the Boys' Training School come from broken homes, Superintendent Sam Laughlin told the Board of Control this week. The institution has more than 600 boys out on parole, Laughlin said. About 20 percent of the boys in the school are parole violators.

Lively Meeting At The Dalles Fetes Col. Robins

Lions Club Hears of Bridges' Defy to State Wool Growers

Heppner had a delegation on hand at The Dalles on Wednesday of last week to welcome the first ships to navigate the sea locks at Bonneville when they arrived at the river port to participate in a celebration honoring Col. T. M. Robins, divisional U. S. Army engineer, supervisor of the work, and recognizing the reinstatement of navigation on the river.

Among men from here in attendance were Judge Bert Johnson, C. J. D. Bauman, J. O. Turner, D. M. Ward, Chas. B. Cox and Dr A. D. McMurdo.

Highly commendatory report of the event was given at the Monday Lions luncheon, when some of the attendants gave impressions. Significant was the unanimity of spirit evidenced by the people of The Dalles and the enthusiasm shown on every hand. "It would have been a good thing if everyone could have attended," was the way one attendant gave his belief that the enthusiasm was such as to engender a livelier spirit in anyone.

Governor Martin, Secretary of State Snell and party arrived on one of the boats and were met at the docks by an old stage coach in which they were taken to the Elks building. Here general visitation was enjoyed until the evening banquet at which 250 were seated. The banquet program included the presentation of a gold watch to Colonel Robins by Governor Martin, speeches and skits both entertaining and educational in revealing future hopes from the river transportation development.

The defy of Harry Bridges, labor union leader, hurled at Oregon wool growers, that sacks of wool not branded to show contents having been shorn by union shearers would not be handled by CIO longshoremen, was reported to the club by Joe Belanger, county agent. A sympathetic interest in the wool growers' problem was expressed by club members who saw no necessity for the labor leader's action.
