Coming Events

Feb. 18—Smoker, Condon vs. Heppner.
 Feb. 25—Basketball, Lexington vs. Heppner.

Save Battleship Oregon

Friday morning a short assembly was held for the purpose of letting Mr. Case of Heppner give an interesting talk about the Battleship Oregon. He gave a very interesting history of the ship and told of the part it took in two wars.

Today an attempt is being made to raise a fund so that the "Oregon" may be placed in the Memorial park in Portland instead of being destroyed. Each student going to school in the state of Oregon may contribute any amount to this fund he wishes.
 —H.H.S.—

Faculty Gives Program

The assembly held last Friday, which was given by the faculty, was greatly enjoyed by the students of the high school. The object of the play was to give an idea of the junior play cast at play practice. Different teachers took the parts of some of the cast and Mr. Peavy acted as director.

Have You Ever Wondered—

Why Ruth spent a perfectly splendid evening in Ione Friday?
 Why Milton Morgan was given a list of pictures showing the art of osculating?
 How Arlene manages it?
 Why it took Kemp Dick 2 hours to drive 3 miles?
 Why Maxine is worrying about the interpretation certain people might give to her trip to Cecil?
 Why all the applause came from the senior side of the assembly when the basketball championship was announced?
 Why Jack Merrill can always tell to the nth degree how long it has been since his first date with a senior girl?
 —H.H.S.—

PINTO-POINTS

Heppner's basketball squad is a tough one to figure out . . . that they can really play ball has been evidenced in several games this year, and then again, they display a brand of ball that is hardly characteristic of a clicking combination . . . any team that loses to Hermiston, a top notch hoop outfit, by 53 points and then goes over to the mentioned city and takes defeat by 21, really has some potentialities . . . sounds rather queer, it must be admitted, that it's an honor to lose a game by 21 tallies, but in this case it was; for in this game, Heppner was minus its lanky freshman center, Doug Drake, who just recently began hitting the stride . . . his being in the line-up probably wouldn't have made up for the difference between a win or a lose, but it would have aided the process considerably. By tournament time, the Mustangs should be about due for another winning streak, but what in the meantime? Only time can tell.
 Off the backboard. The referee of one of last week's practice scrimmages wore leather-soled shoes while journeying up and down the court as he performed his duty . . . and yet we wonder why our basketball floor is in such poor shape. La Verne Van Marter can still play basketball and compete in track this semester, but not in Heppner . . . in Portland, whose schools have been ousted from the Oregon High School

Athletic association because they refused to accept that body's ninth term rule, five-year men are considered eligible for track and basketball . . . as Van Marter was forced out of competition because of that ruling, Heppner could follow suit with Portland and also break away from the state athletic body. Tomorrow night in the local gym, the Heppner FFA boxing team meets the farmer mit club from Condon . . . speaking of ring battles brings up the time, about twenty years ago, when a local boy and another from a neighboring town squared off in a private grudge battle, with but a small number of selected spectators on hand . . . the bout lasted only a short time . . . with one punch, the local boy flattened his foe, thereby finishing the match; in fact, the boy who took it on the chin appeared to be so lifeless after taking the blow that a doctor was called, but the boxer's toes stayed in their natural position and he snapped out of it some time later. Two weeks ago, this column carried a statement to the effect that an announcement was forthcoming which would startle basketball fans of this section . . . it failed to materialize; in fact, it was just something made out of nothing . . . someone got the idea that because a high school player played with a town team, he thereby made himself ineligible for further competition while in school . . . when this information leaked out, and it was to be guarded with utmost secrecy, concerning Ted Wilson and one of his teammates at Boardman, a cloud of quietness surrounded the matter . . . Wilson and his fellow player, Stanley Partlow, both played for Boardman Townies . . . added to this, Gerald Keller, Hermiston ace, was also allegedly in on a similar deal, playing with the Hermiston All-Stars . . . none of the information about the ineligibility of these players has sufficient backing, so it's well to dismiss the whole idea.
 —H.H.S.—

Brain Buster

A strong man can lift twelve hundred pounds in a circus. How much can he lift with a pulley and rope, the pulley being fastened to the ceiling while he stands on the floor?
 Answer: No more than his own weight.
 —H.H.S.—

Here and There

Willie Stone has returned to school after an absence of three weeks.
 Pat Cason was in Portland over the week end.
 The Bownings, Bill and Margaret, were absent a few days last week.
 Joe Aiken is the proud possessor of a well-skinned nose, the result of a collision with Kid O'Donnell during a recent basketball game.
 Frances Rugg, Heppner alumnus, is home for a week's vacation. She is a junior in Pacific university at Forest Grove.
 Gerald Cason, another H. H. S. graduate, is tagging sheep in the crew of his uncle, Harley Matteson.
 Kenneth Klinger and Irvin Rauch, junior and sophomore respectively, are new students in Heppner high school. They are transfers from Lexington.
 Carolyn Vaughn and Shirley Wilson attended the basketball game at Hermiston last Friday evening.
 Bethal Blake attended the Lexington-Boardman basketball game in Lexington Friday night.
 Mr. Blankenship went to the annual superintendents' conference in Salem last Thursday, Friday and Saturday.
 —H.H.S.—

Benefit Program Success

An appreciative crowd attended the Infantile Paralysis benefit program which was presented in the auditorium last Thursday evening. The first part of the program consisted of five selections by the school band. This was followed by vocal numbers given by the boys' and girls' chorus of Heppner high school. The grand finale was a one-act burlesque entitled "The Idlings of the King," given by members of the senior class.

Humor

Norma Prock: "I am going to the beauty shop to get a page boy."
 Jeanette B.: "I think sailor boys are much nicer."
 "Well," said the waiter in the Shack to the student who had just had his seventh cup of coffee, "you must be very fond of coffee."

 "Yes, indeed!" answered the student, "or I wouldn't be drinking so much water to get a little."

Miss Nordstrom: "What was it that Sir Walter Raleigh said when he placed his coat on the muddy road for Queen Elizabeth to walk on?"
 Dick Wilkinson: "Step on it, kid."

Mother: "Marvin, there comes your music teacher. Have you washed your hands and face?"
 Marvin: "Yessum."
 Mother: "And your ears?"
 Marvin: "I washed the one that will be next to her."

Teacher: "Can any of you girls tell me what makes the tower of Pisa lean?"
 Fat Girl: "I don't know. If I did, I'd take some of it myself."

Mr. Blankenship: "Can anyone give me an example of indirect tax?"
 Lloyd B.: "The dog tax."
 Mr. B.: "Why is that an indirect tax?"
 Lloyd: "Because the dog doesn't pay it."

Vernon K.: "I feel blue this morning; just shot my dog."
 Joan W.: "Was he mad?"
 Vernon: "Well, he didn't seem to be any too pleased."

"My wife asked me to take our cat off somewhere and lose it. So I put it in a basket and tramped out into the country for about eight miles."
 "Did you lose the cat?"
 "Lose it! If I hadn't followed it, I'd never have got back home."
