Hardman Students To Vie at La Grande

By OPAL HASTINGS
Bright and early on Saturday a car load of high school pupils will leave for La Grande to take part in the annual speech arts festival. There are two entrants in the poetry reading, Opal Hastings with "The Famine," and Irl Clary with "The Seminole's Defiance," both of whom will be on the forenoon program. The one-act play, "Not Quite Such a Goose," is scheduled for 1:30. Those in the cast are Vern McDaniel, Opal Hastings, Mildred Clary, Irl Clary and Donald Robinson. There will be a banquet and an evening performance as well as a meeting of directors, so it will be a full day.

The Let's Talk meeting held last Wednesday was the last for this year. We will not meet again until next fall and hope that we have a good attendance to start the new school year. Irl Clary will be president and Opal Hastings secretary for the new session.

The high school directors held their regular session and transacted routine business.

The Community Sing met at 7:30 Wednesday evening at the usual time for singing. There were two readings, "Zachery and the Setting Hen" and "Going Fishing" by Mrs. McCutcheon. There was a special meeting called to discuss the time for stopping this year. It was decided that we have another meeting or two before closing the weekly sessions until fall.

The spring weather we've been having lately seems to have put the citizens of Hardman in a good mood. Half of them turned out for the spring festival at Heppner Friday. Since most of us like camping on our motor trips, we met at the home of Mrs. Roy Robinson and then left in their truck. It was an enjoyable ride to Heppner with 25 present and plenty of sunshine and fresh air. On arriving in Heppner everyone proceeded to do their shopping and plain killing of time until noon when they met at the high school for lunch and to watch the Maypole dances. After the singing that evening everyone came home! It was a somewhat breezier ride than the one earlier in the day but everyone enjoyed it and seemed to be glad they had gone.

Glenn Cox of Enterprise and Harve Moore of Lonerock spent Sunday at the home of Owen Leathers. They are waiting to shear at Clark Stevens' ranch with the Kinnard McDaniel crew.

Mrs. G. I. Clary led Christian Endeavor Sunday night. The topic for discussion was "Honesty."

The Sunday school decided to dismiss until school opens in September, since most of the pupils will not be here during the summer months.

Miss Alta Stevens went to the O. C. Stevens ranch Sunday where she will cook for the shearing crew.

Predictions regarding weather, based upon Easter conditions, are all wrong because we are having some very cold and dismal days at present and we shall plan no Sunday picnics for several weeks. Although the most of the days have been cold we have had several warm days, but they don't come very often.

Mrs. Charlie Fraters was visiting her mother, Mrs. W. F. Gallagher, last week.

Since the Rev. R. V. Hinkle found it necessary to change his plans, the baccalaureate exercises will be held at the church on Friday, May 6 at 7:30 instead of on Sunday as was previously announced.

Ad Inskeep and Osel attended the show in Heppner Sunday.

Nelson and Charles Knighten were attending to business in Heppner Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Harshman were visiting friends and relatives in Hardman Sunday.

Kenneth Batty visited Sunday at the Lewis Batty home.

Roy Robinson has moved to his mountain ranch. He brought his son Donald home Sunday and Mrs. Robinson accompanied him back to the mountains.

Miss Iris Morton and Mrs. Neal Knighten left Thursday, April 28, for Oregon City. Mrs. Moore of Heppner and Irma Scott and Lorene Fulgham of Lexington went with them. Thursday night they stayed at Miss Morton's home in Portland and bright and early Friday morning they went on to Oregon City where they attended the Christian Endeavor convention. Miss Morton, who is state prayer meeting superintendent, led three conferences. The theme of the convention was "Christ, the Master Builder," and the main speaker was Dr. Luther Stein of California, a specialist in young peoples' work. They drove back Sunday after the afternoon session, and all reported a good time.

Mrs. Frank McDaniel and Esten Stevens motored to Hamilton Monday where they visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stevens. Mrs. Stevens returned with them and plans to remain until after election.

- Boiling Pot

Salem.—With the primary election only two weeks away the political pot has already reached the boiling point. Especially is this true of the gubernatorial campaign on the democratic ticket. With the Hess forces training their big guns on Governor Martin, calling into question his New Dealism as well as his Democracy, the governor attacking Hess as a self-seeking demagogue and Henry Oleen showing no partiality in his attacks on both of his opponents this particular sector of the campaign front is practically monopolizing the attention of the Oregon public.

Competent observers of the situation who have contacted voters in various sections of the state are inclined to agree that just at this stage of the campaign Governor Martin has the democratic nomination "in the bag" although qualifying this prognostication by the explanation that he will not receive a majority of the democratic votes. In a two-way race between Martin and Hess, these observers declare, the La Grande man would have better than a 50-50 chance for the nomination but with Oleen in the field to divide the anti-Martin support the governor is comparatively safe. Heavy gains in democratic registrations, especially in industrial centers, are believed to reflect a round-up of anti-Martin voters in the drive of organized labor to defeat the governor. Democratic gains have been especially heavy in Clackamas, Clatsop, Coos, Deschutes, Klamath, Lane, Lincoln, Marion, Multnomah, Umatilla, and Washington counties.

So far the Republican gubernatorial aspirants have failed to evoke any considerable enthusiasm among the rank and file of their party. With a field of eight candidates to choose from the names of Sam Brown, the Gervais farmer, and Charles A. Sprague, Salem publisher, stand out from the group as the favorites for the nomination and it is doubtful if the average republican voter could name more than two of the remaining six candidates without consulting a sample ballot. Clarence Wagoner of Portland is expected to poll a heavy vote among the Townsend followers in Multnomah county but is not regarded as a serious contender for the nomination. Neither is Charles L. Paine of Eugene believed to command enough support to win the race in spite of the surprising strength he developed in the campaign for republican national committeeman two years ago.

Taking a page from the experience of Nebraska the State Grange is sponsoring a proposed constitutional amendment for a unicameral legislature for Oregon. Under the Grange proposal the legislature would consist of 60 members elected for two-year terms. Regular legislative sessions would be limited to 50 days and special sessions to 20 days with the members drawing $8 a day for their services. The Grange program would also authorize special sessions upon a call signed by two-thirds of the membership as well as upon call by the governor.

Oregon will concentrate its appeal to the tourist trade in a display at the San Francisco Worlds fair. Definite decision to withdraw from the New York exposition was announced following a meeting of the Oregon World's fair commission here this week. In a formal statement the commission explained that withdrawal from the New York fair was due to the "cold and indifferent attitude" of the New York fair officials to the Oregon exhibit.

Resumption of the federal pump priming program has revived hope for PWA aid in financing construction of a new tuberculosis hospital to be located in Multnomah county. The Board of Control has announced its intention to press Oregon's claim for a $90,000 grant to supplement a state appropriation of $110,000 for the new institution.

While, naturally, there is no considerable enthusiasm among state employees over President Roosevelt's proposal to tax their salaries in his effort to balance the federal budget there will be no organized opposition to the program so far as Oregon is concerned. High state officials, those whose pay checks will be hardest hit by the federal tax, are practically unanimous in endorsement of the proposal. Governor Martin, State Treasurer Holman, Secretary of State Snell, members of the supreme court and heads of various state departments who have been interviewed on the subject admit the justice of the proposal that state employees should bear their share of the cost of government. While there are a total of 9825 men and women on the state payroll drawing an aggregate of 11,045,000 a year a large majority of these will be exempt from the federal tax. Statistics compiled by the budget department show that the average annual wage for men on the state payroll is only $1620. Most of these men are married and entitled to an exemption of $2500. While women in the employ of the state earn an average of $1152 a year many earn less than the $1000 a year which is allowed to single persons before the income tax applies.

Oregon farmers are urged by the State Department of Agriculture to insist that the seed which they buy for spring planting is properly labeled in accordance with the provisions of the new Oregon seed law. The new law is designed to protect farmers from purchasing seed containing noxious weeds, according to Frank McKennon of the department.

The population at the state prison continues to show a steady growth. Warden Lewis reported to the Board of Control this week. The prison population shows an increase of more than 65 since the first of the year and is now approaching the previous peak of 1103.

Eight convicted labor vandals now occupy cells in the Oregon penitentiary. Al N. Banks, Salem teamster union leader, is the latest addition to the prison "goon" colony. A number of minor offenders caught in the recent raids on labor racketeers are serving short terms in county jails.
