Survey Reveals Plight of Youth In Rural Areas

The number of "older young people" in rural areas in Oregon between the ages of 16 and 25 years was approximately 75,000 at the time of the last general census, about half of whom were out of school and unmarried. The situations, problems and interests of these unmarried rural young people have recently been studied as a joint effort of the national and state cooperative extension service at Oregon State college, and the mimeographed report of the study issued by the United States department of agriculture.

Bernard D. Joy, a former Jackson county boy who is now agriculturist at Washington, D. C., in the division of extension studies and teaching, and J. R. Beck, rural service specialist at Oregon State college, are authors of this first report ever made on older rural youth in Oregon.

Eighty-nine percent of the out-of-school youth in Oregon contacted in the study had not entered their chosen vocation. While only 29.4 per cent of this age group are continuing in school, 68 per cent of the out-of-school youth were high school graduates.

It has frequently been said that the young men and women in this age group had for the most part passed beyond contacts with 4-H clubs or Smith-Hughes work and had not yet found places in regular adult organizations. The extent to which this is true was clearly indicated in the Oregon survey, where it was found that although 65 per cent of the young people interviewed in this study had been members of 4-H clubs, only 10 per cent were then associated with the extension service, and 78 per cent of the out-of-school youth had no memberships in organizations except those associated with the church.

The report is based on actual interviews with more than 455 young people in representative farming areas in Tillamook, Lane, Clackamas and Union counties.

MISS NORMOYLE TO WED

Miss Minnie Normoyle announced her coming marriage to Mr. Howard F. Grant of Seattle at an announcement party in Ione Tuesday evening. The ceremony has been set for July 30 at St. Mark's chapel, Seattle. The party was given by Locust chapter, Order of Eastern Star. Miss Normoyle drove over from Athena, accompanied by Mrs. Asa Swann. A graduate of Ione high school, the intended bride studied music in New York smumer before last and taught one year before entering University of Washington where she attended last year. She is the niece of Mrs. Lee Beckner of Ione and Athena.

A call to drive carefully over the Fourth of July holiday has been issued by Secretary of State Earl Snell, who points to five traffic deaths which occurred in this state during the double holiday last year. Observance of moderate speeds, planning of trips which can be made comfortably during the two-day period, and avoidance of late night driving are urged by Snell.

Mrs. Thompson Visits Grant County Unit

"They greeted me with everything but the brass band," was the praise of Mrs. Ralph I. Thompson, president of Oregon Woolgrowers auxiliary, on her return from Grant county where she was entertained by the Grant county unit last Saturday.

Eighty-seven members of the neighboring county unit were present for the meeting at the Laughlin farm on the Ochoco highway. Mr. Thompson, Mrs. W. O. Bayless and Mrs. W. H. Cleveland accompanied Mrs. Thompson. A tour of much of Grant county was made on the trip and Mrs. Thompson reported much beautiful scenery and fine crop conditions.

BOYS SELECTED

Final selection of Morrow county boys who will attend the Beaver Boy State camp sponsored by the American Legion was made this week. Those to attend will be Henry Peterson, Jr., on local American Legion post sponsorship; Harry Tamblin, Jr., on Elks sponsorship, and Hugh Crawford on Lions sponsorship. In case of each sponsorship the boy whose name was drawn second is making the trip, as those whose names were drawn first declined. Boys whose names were drawn first were Wilbur Worden, American Legion; Donald Bennett, Lions, and Arthur McAtee, Elks. Definite announcement of location of the camp has not yet been made, the choice lying between Camp Bonnevill and Silver Creek falls. The purpose of the camp is to train boys in the conduct of government. At the camp they will organize their own government from governor down to the local justice of the peace. The camp will last one week and it is expected 500 boys will attend.

FERGUSON HOME RENOVATED

The R. B. Ferguson family moved back into their completely renovated home on Church street the first of the week, after living in the Ferguson cabins two months while the work on the house was in progress. The house was remodeled throughout with the work in charge of N. D. Bailey, and was completely modernized. Shakes on the exterior, painted light gray, with green roof an arched entrance and corner windows make the exterior pleasing. Rearrangement of interior provides dinette, an additional bedroom, and more conveniently arranged kitchen with built-ins. Walls are newly plastered and archways are judiciously placed to lend attractiveness.

DRIVING SCHOOL 11TH

Increasing interest in the safety driving school was reported Monday by E. L. Van Blaricom, instructor from the office of Earl Snell, secretary of state. The lesson next Monday has been postponed due to the day being the Fourth of July, and will be held on the 11th instead.

Poster Sale to Provide Fair Awards

"Wool for Warmth—Lamb for Health" is the featured story of large colored posters being offered by Mrs. Ralph I. Thompson, president Oregon Woolgrowers auxiliary, at 85 cents each, profit from which will be used to pay premiums for displaying woolen articles at the state fair.

The posters are attractive and should be in demand by business houses for window display as well as woolgrowers and citizens for use on cars and trucks, Mrs. Thompson says. Those desiring posters may get them through Mrs. Thompson or members of the local unit.

Screens, Ladders Get Inspection

Fish ladders on dams and screens on intakes of irrigation ditches were inspected on Rhea and Willow creeks last Saturday by R. C. Rittenour, field man under the supervisor of the state game commission. The inspection at this time was to ascertain the extent of compliance with last year's orders that proper dams and screens must be installed.

Rittenour emphasized that last notice was being given on this trip for compliance with the commission's orders.

tem, the town of Lexington has applied for a PWA grant. Mayor Tom Barnett was in Pendleton Tuesday to consult the district PWA office in regard to the matter.

Tire failures are a prolific cause of traffic accidents and deaths during summer months, when high speeds and hot pavings combine to build up undue temperatures and pressures in automobile tires, according to Secretary of State Earl Snell. He advises motorists to check inflation at frequent intervals, and to refrain from using tires worn to the fabric on long drives.
