

JACKSON GILLIAM PRESIDES AT MEET

Pacific Province Y. P. F. Attracts Attendance from Wide Area; Local Young Folk Prominent

Heppner's delegation to the Pacific province conference of Young People's Fellowship held at Cove four days last week returned home Saturday night. Included were retiring province president, Jackson Gilliam, Buddy Blakely, Martha Dick, Scott McMurdo, Kemp Dick, Scott McMurdo, Mrs. E. E. Gilliam, Mrs. Ed Dick and Mrs. Chas. Osmin. The ladies served as cooks for the young people.

One of the largest conferences held to date, the one this year attracted attendance from the eight Pacific states included in the organization. Representatives were present from New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Couer d'Alene, Longview, Spokane, Boise, Vancouver, B. C., as well as from all over Oregon.

Jackson Gilliam presided at the conference sessions, and in recognition of the capable manner in which he performed received a letter of warm commendation from one of the attending ministers from Vancouver, B. C., whose parish has a membership of 1600 people.

In the election William McGuire of Los Angeles was elected president to succeed Gilliam, while Gilliam was made one of the province advisers along with Leonard Maynard of California. The end of the month Gilliam will attend young peoples conferences at Vancouver and Victoria, B. C.

Local young people and those who have accompanied them to Cove for various Episcopal assemblages have high praise for the beauty and facilities of the 100 acre camp ground. Lying in the mountain cove between two high peaks, the grounds contain large spaces of blue grass, nicely kept, and orchards that lend to its attractiveness.

Local young people, too, have had conspicuous part in the camp's activities. At the junior conference two weeks previous, Philip Cohn of this city was voted the best all-round student.

A new system of tax-bookkeeping, developed by the division of audits of the Oregon department of state, has been installed in Deschutes, Polk and Klamath counties, and Coos county is making an independent installation, according to Secretary of State Earl Snell. The chief feature of the new system is that tax records for a given piece of property are kept for a 10-year period on a single loose-leaf sheet, instead of being recorded as single-line entries in large ledgers along with other unrelated entries. The loose-leaf sheets are filed according to location, adjoining plots and blocks being in consecutive order.

Traffic accidents, injuries and fatalities all slumped in Oregon during the first six months of 1938, compared with last year, Secretary of State Earl Snell announced recently. Most noticeable drop was in fatalities, which declined 14 per cent.

gone up town on business. Ronald Coblantz, helper, was the last to leave, and had ascertained just before doing so that the fire in the furnace was properly banked as was the custom at the end of each day's work. He could not imagine how the fire could possibly have started from the furnace.

The siren sounded at 5:15 and within fifteen minutes the superstructure of the laundry building had all fallen.

OSC Gets Bigger Chemistry Plant

Oregon State College—A new $425,000 chemistry building at OSC will be ready by the opening of college in the fall of 1939, and old science hall, more familiarly known as the "chem shack" will be remodeled by the same time as the result of approval of a supplementary PWA grant and loan recently announced. Earlier approval of a $300,000 project was amended to include the additional sum which will make possible a much more adequate plant for this largest department in the school of science, and provide a first-class remodeled building for use by other departments in the school.

Post Summer Session Popular

Oregon State College—More than twice as many students are enrolled for the post summer session at OSC as attended a year ago. Added popularity for the session followed lengthening of class periods so that students could earn nine credits in the five-week post session the same as in the six-week regular session. Final report on the regular session showed attendance of 737 this year compared with 694 last summer. Freshman week, prior to opening of the regular fall term, starts Monday, September 19.
