"In a little mission Sunday school I bought a small red leather Bible for two dollars and seventy-five cents. Looking back over my life, that little red Bible was the foundation on which my life has been built, and it has made possible all that has counted most in life. I know now that it was the greatest and most important purchase I have ever made; and every other investment of my life seems to me, after mature years, only secondary."—The late John Wanamaker, business man.

Army Planes Take Heppner's Lone Airway Going South

Southern migration via the airways over Heppner caused craning of habitants' necks to send the gaze heavenward at one time only upon the passing of a band of ducks or geese. But progress of civilization has brought a different order.

Now one airplane of flying-ship travel, that from Spokane southward, though not heavily traveled has found Heppner in its path.

When a squadron of Uncle Sam's army airships took this course early Monday morning, necks of many folks at Heppner and vicinity found new cause for craning and eyes were turned toward the sky to see the unusual sight.

Reports have been given from eleven all the way to eighteen ships in the number that passed this way.

New fall stock of hats, coats, suits and dresses just arrived at Curran Ready-to-Wear.

Mr. and Mrs. Garland Swanson of Ione were visitors in the city Monday.

Family Play Important In Child Development

How can we find more time for the family to play together?

This is the question uppermost in the minds of a great many people today who are beginning to realize that making a good life is more important than making a good living, and that people are spending too much time making a living and neglecting to live, says Mrs. Maud Morse, extension specialist in child development and parent education at Oregon State college.

The education and recreation of family members used to be two of the chief functions of the home. Today these are taken over by public schools, libraries, playgrounds, parks, theaters, public golf courses, tennis courts, community recreational centers and other agencies. While these are highly desirable, a great opportunity for family living is lost if these are allowed to displace entirely the home as a recreational center, Mrs. Morse believes.

Children get their first experience in living in their own homes, Mrs. Morse explains. They get their attitudes, their beliefs, their practices and many of their opinions from their parents. Through the family playing together, parents can teach fair play, give and take, the value of cooperation, and the fun of sharing. Happy is the home which is not only the child's first playground, but which continues to be the favorite gathering place for the members of the family, says Mrs. Morse.

There are many things families can do together, such as playing games, celebrating birthdays, pursuing hobbies, reading books, and similar activities, but it is the quality of association much more than the quantity that produces the greatest returns in happiness, Mrs. Morse feels. An hour of fishing with Dad will create more satisfaction in the adolescent than a whole day of aimless being together, she says.

Families are budgeting for nearly everything else nowadays—why not budget time for playing together, Mrs. Morse asks.

Gene Normoyle Hurt in Truck Fall

Gene Normoyle of Ione was badly cut up Tuesday when he was thrown from a wheat truck into a barbed wire fence. The truck had turned off the road to allow passage of a car and in doing so hit a rock which careened the truck over on its side and hurled Gene from the wheat sacks against the jagged wire.

Gene's right arm and side received the most painful injuries.
