Ione-Lex Churches
Plan New Program

by MARGARET BLAKE

On last Thursday afternoon and evening Rev. C. F. Swander, superintendent of the Christian church of Oregon, and Dr. F. E. Carlson, superintendent of the Congregational church of Oregon, met with the members of their respective churches at Ione and Lexington and a plan was worked out whereby these churches together with the Ione Baptist church will be served by a regular pastor. Each church will be represented on an inter-church committee whose duty it will be to select a minister, arrange finances, places of meeting and such other business as will be necessary to carry out the plan. The members of this committee as chosen are: Christian church, Lexington, Miss Dona Barnett, Mrs. May Campbell, alternate; Congregational church, Lexington, Mrs. Cora Allyn, Mrs. Maude Pointer, alternate; Christian church, Ione, Mrs. Olive Engelman, Mrs. Minnie Forbes, alternate; Baptist church, Ione, I. R. Robison, Fred Pettyjohn, alternate; Congregational church, Ione, Fred Mankin, Mrs. Margaret Blake.

The first meeting of the inter-church committee was held Monday afternoon at the home of I. R. Robison. At that time I. R. Robison was elected to act as chairman of the committee, Mrs. Olive Engelman, secretary, and Mrs. Cora Allyn, treasurer. An unanimous vote was cast to call Rev. C. F. Trimble of Multnomah, as pastor. Rev. James Pointer was present and gave many valuable suggestions. It is largely through his efforts that this movement to secure a minister has been brought about.

Church services will be held at the Christian church at Lexington next Sunday morning and at the Baptist church in Ione next Sunday evening. A regular schedule of services will be arranged later.

A wedding uniting two former Oregon State college students was one of the largest and most beautiful nuptial events of the fall season in Roseburg. Miss Ethola Jan Kinney, niece of Dr. and Mrs. D. B. Bubar of Roseburg, was married to Leo Franklin Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Young of Ione, at a ceremony read last Saturday evening at the Roseburg Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. S. Raynor Smith, pastor of the church, officiated in the presence of three hundred guests, relatives and friends of the couple.

Tall ivory cathedral tapers were used with baskets of coral, yellow, and white gladioli to decorate the church altar. Mrs. Gordon Stewart presided at the organ and Mrs. Vera McClintock Jones sang.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. Bubar, and wore a wedding gown of white Duchess satin on princess lines. Her tulle wedding veil formed a long train and was arranged from a halo of seed pearls and sprays of lilies of the valley. She carried a gold cross, and white Bible sprayed with gardenias and white satin ribbon.

Miss Ella Hennigh of Portland was maid of honor, and Miss Adah Marie Ruhl, Miss Frances Louise Wimberly, Miss Theresa Conn of Eugene, and Miss Helen Marie Catching were bridesmaids. Miss Hennigh wore turquoise blue twinkle crepe chiffon and the bridesmaids coral winkle crepe chiffon, completed with white French face veils. They carried old fashioned nosegays with satin ties.

Clair Young of Corvallis attended his brother as best man, and the ushers were William Campbell, Jr., Albert Chamberlin, Harrison Winston and Harry Lehrbach of Eugene.

A reception was held at the Bubar home after the ceremony, with Miss Eugenia Virden of Corvallis in charge of the guest book.

Mr. and Mrs. Young left for a wedding trip to the Oregon beaches and later are to be at home in Eugene. Mrs. Young, a popular member of the younger set in Roseburg, was graduated from the high school there and attended Oregon State college. Mr. Young attended Oregon State two years and is now a senior at the University of Oregon where he will graduate in March, completing the course in business administration and accounting. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

WORK STARTS ON BUILDING

Oregon State College — Ground breaking for the new PWA chemistry building is expected the first week in October, following the awarding of the contract for general construction to Dougan-Hammond, Inc., Portland, and for the equipment to Cherveny and Reverman, Portland, at a combined contract price of $295,963. As this was approximately $65,000 below the advance estimates, money will be available to enlarge the building somewhat over the original plans.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schoonover at Reed's mill, Saturday night, a 9-pound son.
