

Wheat League Sets Convention at The Dalles, Dec. 1-3

Secretary Wallace Invited; Vital Problems to be Up

Eastern Oregon wheat leaguers and everyone else interested in the wheat industry, who attend, will hear up to the minute problems discussed by the best informed speakers obtainable when the league meets for its annual convention at The Dalles, December 1-2-3. Such, at least, is the object of plans laid by the executive committee at its meeting in Arlington last Sunday afternoon when the date and place of convening were decided upon, heads named for the three major committees, and a tentative outline drawn for the speaking program.

Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, will be one of the headline speakers if the committee's invitation is accepted. Or if he is unable to attend, the committee asked that he send either Mr. Evans, head of the triple A, or George E. Farrell, head of the western division of the wheat section, as his representative.

Other speakers invited include Mr. Davis from the wheat economics department, Stanford university; Roy Sealy, head of the federal weed control experiment station at Genesee, Idaho; J. H. Christ, district soil conservation service supervisor; F. L. Ballard, director of experiment stations, to discuss and coordinate land use reports made by county committees at last year's farm economic conferences; a speaker to bring the river development program up to date, and the newly elected governor and United States senator, whoever they may be, the governor to speak at the Friday evening banquet and the senator to appear on the main program.

The convention proper is slated to start Friday morning, Dec. 2, with the afternoon of Thursday, the first day, devoted to general committee meetings. The annual banquet will be held Friday evening, and it is expected to finish the convention sessions shortly after noon Saturday so that those journeying from a distance may return home that afternoon.

George Peck, league president, presided at the executive committee meeting, Charles W. Smith, secretary since the league's beginning, acted in his capacity and committeemen were present from Umatilla, Morrow, Gilliam, Sherman and Wasco counties.

A redivision of committee work was made to incorporate all work under three main committees this year, instead of four as last year. These committees, with chairmen and vice-chairmen, are Taxation, Legislation and Rural Electrification, Glenn Richards, chairman, Carol Baker, vice-chairman; Federal Agricultural and Soil Conservation Programs, Mac Hoke, chairman, E. H. Miller, vice-chairman; Production, Transportation, Handling and Weed Control, C. A. Nish, chairman, O. W. Cutsforth, vice-chairman.

Morrow county representatives at the meeting were Mr. Peck, E. H. Miller, O. W. Cutsforth and Joseph Belanger.

Willows H. E. Club Sets All Day Meet

Willows grange H. E. club will hold an all-day pot-luck dinner meeting in the grange hall at Cecil on Friday, Oct. 21. At this time the hall and stage will be prepared for the Home Economics program, bazaar and social evening to be held in the hall on Saturday night, Oct. 29. Election of club officers for the coming year will also take place at this meeting. Mrs. E. C. Heliker, chairman of the club, asks that all members who possibly can bring their finished 16 inch quilt block to the meeting on the 21st. Also those who have not contributed their packages to the birthday box, please do so in the immediate future.

WOOL DISPLAY SHOWN

Mrs. Ralph I. Thompson, president Oregon Wool Growers auxiliary, is enthusiastic in praising the cooperation received from Meier & Frank company in boosting interest in woolen articles during the Pacific International Livestock exposition. Previously to going to the exposition she wrote Portland's big department store asking if they might not make a window display of wool and woolen articles during the exposition. She did not receive a reply before leaving, but on reaching the city she found that one large window on the corner of 5th and Morrison was given over to a display including the raw wool, the several processes of handling and manufacture down to the finished product, also statistics on the wool industry, and a placard saying that the display had been arranged for the state wool auxiliary. Another large window also was employed, showing various articles of woolen apparel and blankets, where credit was also given the auxiliary. Mrs. Thompson said that woolen neckties were promoted in the auxiliary's booth at the P. I. and that the receipts were more than the amount taken in at the state fair booth.

Improved Street Lighting Proposal Given to Council

Ornamental Curb Fixtures for Main Street Included

A proffer for improved street lighting for the city was presented to the council Monday evening by G. L. Corey, district manager of Pacific Power & Light company, The Dalles, and Homer Curtis, the company's lighting technician.

The power company representatives outlined briefly a plan of ornamental curb lights for Main street which the company would install and amortize the cost to the city over a twenty-year period. Not only would the appearance of Main street be greatly enhanced by the installation, but it was assured that the illumination would be much better than that of the present system.

Approximate figures quoted by the visitors show that the city's street lighting bill would be increased from $60 to $150 a month to pay for the installation over the 20-year period. Definite action on the proposal was not taken Monday evening, but was left open for further consideration. Discussion by the council revealed a belief that the inefficiency of the present Main street lighting is such as to make traffic after night extremely hazardous. Just enough light is shed to largely nullify effectiveness of car headlights and pedestrians or other objects in the street are run upon before they can be seen by car drivers. But the need for the improvement was for the moment outweighed by the reluctance to assume an obligation that would put the city in the hole for a considerable period. A thorough consideration of all angles was deemed necessary to determine the project's feasibility.

After listening to the power company representatives the council devoted the rest of Monday's meeting to preparing a tentative draft of the city's financial needs to be presented to the budget committee when it meets next Monday evening. Sitting with the council at that time will be Hanson Hughes, J. G. Thomson, M. D. Clark, L. E. Bisbee, W. C. Cox and E. G. Noble, citizen members of the committee.

P. W. Mahoney presided Monday evening as Mayor Jeff Jones was prevented by illness from attending, and all other members of the council were present.
