The Second Guess

PRE-ELECTION prognosticators now have opportunity to check up on themselves and make a second guess as to what the results may mean to the future of the nation. This newspaper attempted no pre-election predictions, but it does take the liberty to second guess.

It now appears that the republicans have gained some 80 seats in the national congress, and in addition administration-opposed democrats have been retained, showing a general tendency toward a "right"-face swing by the nation's voters.

Many factors entered into this tendency on the part of the electorate. There has been too much labor racketeering. Folks subsisting on government dole are finding the dole meager, showing preference for a job and independence. Business is tired of being heckled. Farmers are finding crop control contributions inadequate to compensate for fallen prices.

All these things and more enter into the reason for the "right" turn. But this right turn does not mean an about face. The good that has been brought about in governmental procedure in the last six years will not be deserted. The election returns bring hope that control, only, will be placed in steadier hands to make needed improvements.

A wise seer, no other than Bruce Barton, now congressman from New York and former columnist whose writings for several years appeared in these columns, recently said that republicans who wish to be elected may not advocate complete denial of the New Deal. They must accept those things that are worthy and simply offer the type of management that the republican party has given the nation many times in the past to keep the ship of state on a steady, even keel.

That, we believe, is what the voters of the nation hoped to accomplish by their vote last Tuesday. It is a healthy situation, for two strong parties are needed to protect the principles of democracy. The people of this nation will take new hope, new confidence and new courage from the election results. The individual will be spurred to greater effort. The individual will create more. And in the doing, the individual will contribute more to the country's welfare, making it thereby a richer and happier nation.

ASSISTANT SUPERVISOR VISITS

From Hehisch

Mr. Morgan, assistant supervisor of state agriculture, was at Heppner Monday. He looked over the new agricultural shop and was well pleased with it. He was very much interested about how the projects were going and what the people in general thought of them. He talked to some of the boys about buying some dairy calves from herds along the coast where butterfat records are known. He said that any agricultural community and any agriculture instructor should be proud of our F. F. A. shop and class room.

APPRECIATION

I wish to express my thanks and appreciation to my supporters in the recent election.

High School Observes Education Week

From Hehisch

American Education Week, under national sponsorship, was first observed in 1921. As early as 1919, the idea of setting aside a week for calling attention of the people to schools was developing. A series of conferences was held between the Americanism commission of the American Legion and the National Education association. Much of the interest arose from the fact that the World War had revealed that a large number of men were illiterate. Tests revealed that a surprisingly large percentage of the men who enrolled in the army and navy had slight education. Many of them could neither read nor write.

The two organizations joined hands in making Education Week "an annual event which would become a great nation-wide festival in which the American people might rededicate themselves to the ideal of self-government based upon an enlightened citizenry."

American Education Week, observed annually since 1921, serves as an opportune occasion to begin or to strengthen a permanent, continuous program of educational interpretation. It is an invaluable phase of a permanent, year-round program of interpretation, although in no sense a substitute for it. During Education week there is a national emphasis upon the schools, their problems and achievements, which provides a momentum too valuable for local school systems to miss.

In observance of National Education Week at the local high school, Mr. Knox gave a talk on health education, Miss Smith spoke on skills of the commercial field, while Jeanette Blakely, Carolyn Vaughn, Margaret Doolittle and Shirley Wilson demonstrated the method by which one learns typing skill.

Bill Barratt was selected by Mr. Peavy to speak on attaining values and standards, or what a high school education should mean to a student.

4-H Winners of Oregon Will Go To Chicago Meet

Oregon 4-H club members will be well represented again this year in competition at the annual National Club congress in Chicago, to be held November 27 to December 3, according to H. C. Seymour, state club leader at OSC. At least five club members from Oregon will go to Chicago this year, having already won the trip on their state achievements. Others may go if their records win in district or national competition.

Those who have won Chicago trips in state contests, and whose records have already been sent in to be judged for national honors, are Emma Rencken of Pilot Rock, Oregon winner in the style revue contest, sponsored by the Chicago Mail Order company; Allen H. Parker, Portland, rural electrification, sponsored by Westinghouse Electric company; June Walborn, Portland, food preparation contest, sponsored by Servel Electrolux; Mary Louise Armstrong, Portland, girls record contest, sponsored by Montgomery Ward and company, and Francine Sharp, Clackamas, canning achievement contest, sponsored by Kerr Glass company.

Entered in western district contests, winners of which will go to Chicago, are Jacqueline Jean Morton, Cottage Grove, home beautification contest, sponsored by Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen of Chicago; Raymond Wyss, Tillamook, handicraft contest sponsored by the Dutch Kraft corporation; and William T. McBurney of Mulino, meat animal production contest, sponsored by Thomas E. Tualatin. Exther Maasen of Portland will represent Oregon in the 4-H achievement contest. The national winners in these contests receive trips to the Club Congress. The Willakenzie Wide-Awake 4-H club, led by Mrs. Edna Mihcael of Eugene, will represent Oregon in the National Social Progress Club contest at Chicago, and should it win first the leader and three members would receive trips to the congress.

Those who are going from Oregon will leave Portland on Thanksgiving day, accompanied by Miss Helen Cowgill, assistant state leader, who will also act as chaperone for the Idaho girls' delegation.

Mrs. Ray Kinne and Mrs. Mark Merrill entertained for five tables at a bridge luncheon Monday at the home of Mrs. Kinne. Mrs. Ed Dick received high score with Mrs. Glen Jones second. Low went to Mrs. Ture Peterson.
