Let Germany Beware

WHEN Hitler's propaganda agent, Goebels, told the American press to stop criticizing Germany's persecution of the Jews or retaliatory measures would be taken against those unfortunates, he called for surcease in diplomatic relations by every nation that recognizes a God in the heavens. Whether President Roosevelt's recalling Ambassador Wilson is taken to mean that Uncle Sam will no longer carry on diplomatic relations, it is certain that the people of this nation would readily uphold his hand in doing so. That the president spoke in no uncertain terms against Germany's apparent reversion to the dark ages is commendable.

One need not give any opinionated views of the semitic race, though in America the Jews have been good citizens. Consideration, only, need be given that no people were placed upon this world by choice; none were granted a special right to dominate a particular part of this old orb, and a government which does not give all people under its control equal rights and privileges compatible with the general welfare is not entitled to recognition as a competent government in this enlightened age. Though expression of opinion in America may cause the Jews in Germany to suffer more, and that is problematical in the face of past experience, continuation of such ill-advised tactics will surely mean the downfall of the German nation. Greed, avarice and hatred are materials uncommon to progress.

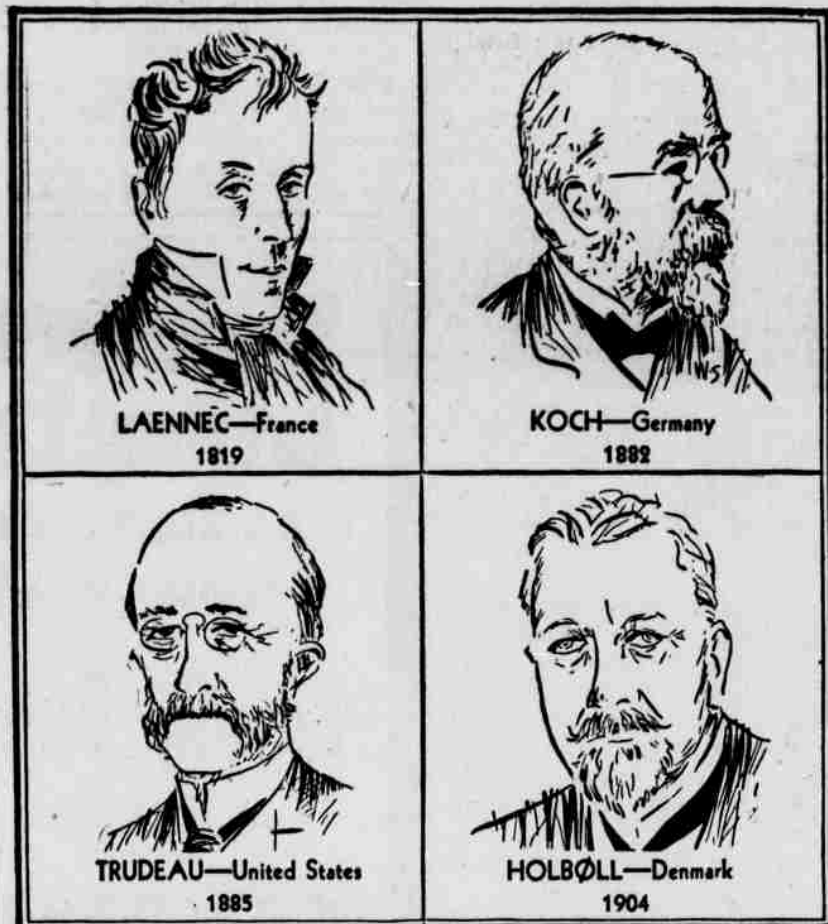

A Return to Sanity

CLEAR-HEADED thinking on the part of American voters in the election just past is an indication that the people are awakening to the futility of adding billions of dollars to the public debt when creating such a debt fails appreciably to strengthen the business structure. That failure of the tremendous government spending is due to placing money where it gives only temporary relief is now being recognized.

Government, like private business, can expect dividends only when the capital is invested in productive enterprises. Non-productive enterprises must be paid for out of profits from productive enterprises. When non-productive enterprises require more than can be paid for from the profits of productive enterprises, then the productive enterprises bog down. The course of government spending in the future is clearly marked. The money must be placed so far as is consistent with humanitarian principles into projects of a wealth producing nature. Labor must contribute a little more than its wage value toward future income possibilities, in each instance, if that labor is to be a health-giving rather than a parasitic factor in determining future economic stability.

These principles are fundamental, and should be fully digested by everyone who has been fooled by the idea that the federal government has the power to provide anything and everything. The millions of people who have been finding subsistence at the governmental front should ask themselves the question: What if everyone else did the same thing?

Men From Four Countries Have Been Leaders in Fight Against Tuberculosis

The age-old battle against tuberculosis is half won, medical authorities agree. Four men from four different countries have made valuable contributions toward eradicating this disease. Dr. Rene Laennec (top left), young French physician, invented the stethoscope in 1819. In 1882 great impetus was given to efforts to combat tuberculosis when Dr. Robert Koch (top right), a German, discovered that the disease was caused by the tubercle bacillus. In 1885, Dr. Edward L. Trudeau

(lower left) opened the first permanent sanatorium at Saranac Lake, N. Y. Christmas Seals as a means of raising money to conduct programs in the diagnosis, prevention and cure of tuberculosis were first sold in Denmark in 1904 by Einar Holboll (lower right), Copenhagen postal clerk. The first Christmas Seal sold in the United States was in 1907, when 179 out of every 100,000 people were dying from tuberculosis. Today, 55.7 out of every 100,000 living die from this disease.

If all the people who are now carrying on the business of the country were to lie down and go begging to Washington, there, would soon be nothing for anyone.

As a free citizen, enjoying the benefits of a strong, benevolent government, every person is duty bound to do his best toward providing for himself. Only in cases where the individual's best efforts fail to provide the recognized necessities of decent living is the government justified in giving outright relief. The person who is found capable of providing enough more than his own needs require, under applied rules of fair play, and is thus able to share with the less fortunate, should not be unduly penalized. For if this type of individual is throttled, the Washington givers will be found empty-handed.

CELEBRATE JOINTLY

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Rugg of Rhea creek celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary jointly with the 20th birthday anniversary of their daughter, Mrs. Marcus Brown, last Thursday, all being in the city that day. Mrs. Brown has been visiting at the home of her parents from the Willamette valley for three weeks and expects to leave shortly to join her husband though their exact location had not been definitely decided. Mr. and Mrs. Rugg are long-time residents of the county and their many friends extend felicitations upon the passing of this important marital yard mark. Mrs. Brown was formerly Miss Frances Rugg, who also has the felicitations of a host of friends.

DANCE AT LEX

Lexington grange is sponsoring a dance at their hall Saturday night, announces Oral Scott, manager.

Mrs. E. R. Lundell of Ione was a visitor in the city for a short time Tuesday.

school will hold a rally service at the Sunday school hour, 9:45, and the consecration service will be at the 11 o'clock worship hour.

Following the morning service a potluck dinner will be served and all friends and members of the church and their families are invited to bring their basket dinners and join us. Tables will be laid in the church parlors.

This is to be a day of real rejoicing for all of us, and a day of thanksgiving to God for His bountiful gifts, and to all the friends and members who have given so generously of time and talents and money to make possible this beautiful sanctuary.

Friends who are unable to join us in the 11 o'clock service because of their own church services, are invited to come to the pot luck dinner.

R. C. YOUNG, Pastor.

Union evening meeting in this church.

"O give thanks unto Jehovah, call upon His name; Make known among the peoples His doings.

Sing unto Him, sing praises unto Him;

Talk ye of all His marvelous works. Glory ye in His holy name;

Let the heart of them rejoice that seek Jehovah.

Seek ye Jehovah and His strength; Seek His face for evermore.

Remember His marvelous works that He hath done, His wonders and the judgments of His mouth." Psalm 105:1-5.
