Walter Rood, old-time Heppner resident, announced when in town Friday that he was again moving to Morrow county to reside. With his family he has taken the Ike Howard place near Ione. A good many years ago Walt was catcher for the Heppner baseball team and was rated in the top flight of "bush" catchers of his time. The family has resided in the Hermiston section for some time, and Walt said it was just like getting back home to be in Morrow county again.

W. H. French was in the city Friday on the way home to the farm in the mountains from a visit in Portland. Mr. French said much fog was encountered on the highway, making travel uncertain and somewhat dangerous. He also reported the recent death of "Bill Francis," the wounded deer which he picked up at his place and treated. It was a beautiful animal and he said he was sorry to lose him.

Emil and Leonard Carlson were in the city yesterday appearing before the county court in the interests of having a new road built in their section of Gooseberry. It is their desire to have the Gooseberry market road run straight up the canyon past the Gooseberry school instead of swinging around it as it does at present.

James, Jr., and Rosanna Farley motored up from Hood River Saturday and remained over Sunday visiting at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Farley. Both are employed at The Fair, leading Hood River department store, "Jimmy" being employed in the shoe department.

Mrs. Karl Miller was in the city Tuesday while visiting friends and relatives in the county from the farm near Salem. She said she left Mr. Miller taking care of things on the farm. Winter in the valley has been pretty wet, but not exceptionally so for that area, she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hiatt of Pendleton visited this week at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Andrew Baldwin, and family. They came Saturday from Condon with another daughter, Mrs. Harlan Devin, who also visited at the Baldwin home for a short time.
