Official Paper for Morrow County

For a Sane Fourth

ALL AMERICA will likely be on wheels over the forthcoming week end and that fact calls for a measure of reflection.

Hazards of highway travel are ever present and on special holiday occasions, such as the Fourth of July, these hazards are multiplied in proportion to the increase in traffic. In many instances long trips are planned and the tendency is to lengthen the stay at the other end of the journey by cutting the time on the road. This is accomplished at the risk of serious accident, through cutting curves and driving at high speed. Also, many people make the drive at night, thus adding to the hazard.

A word of caution is unnecessary to the habitually careful driver, but volumes have been written and many more volumes will be written about careless driving without getting under the hide of the reckless driver. There seems to be but one argument to reach the reckless motorist and he usually produces the argument himself in the form of an accident. All too frequently the accident writes finis to the driver's career as well as carrying innocent victims to destruction.

As a word of warning we would say "Drive carefully this week end!" Your smile is much more pleasant to gaze upon than your corpse.

Highway accidents are not the only aftermath of the annual observance of Independence day. Powder and water claim their share of human life. Be slow about handling fireworks if you are not familiar with them. This goes for adults as well as children. Some of those ingenious noise and pyrotechnic devices are potential blasters if not handled properly and frequently leave their victims marked for life.

If you must don a bathing suit on the Fourth and can't swim, content yourself with dabbling in the water and don't get in beyond your depth. If it is running water always stay near the bank or at least within reach of help from the bank.

This may sound prudish, but the list of accidents, many of them fatal, recurs from year to year with alarming regularity. Have a good time on the Fourth, by all means, but be sane about it. If you would save your head, use it.

Passing of Erward E. Brodie, Oregon City publisher, closes an active career. His worth as a newspaperman was recognized by his fellow publishers, not only in Oregon where he served as president of the state press association, but in the national field where he served as president of the National Editorial association. His field of service extended beyond the publishing business, representing his government as minister to Sam and as ambassador to Finland. His was a useful career and his death marks the passing of one of Oregon's first citizens.

Two-ton Tony made good his threat to knock Louis down, even if not out. Louis, like Jack Dempsey in the Firpo fight, had to be knocked into action, as it were, before he showed the fighting stuff he is made of. Tony demands another go with the colored boy, which shows he is none too smart.

Former Resident Passes at Ukiah

Funeral services for the late John Ewing, 89, who died at Ukiah Saturday morning, were held from the Folsom chapel in Pendleton Monday, with Rev. F. C. Wissenbach, rector of the Church of the Redeemer, officiating.

Mr. Ewing and family resided in Heppner several years, leaving here about 35 years ago. He was a partner of James Thomson, buying the interest of Floyd Thomas in the mercantile establishment of Thomson & Thomas, and the business was moved to the north room of the present Thomson Bros. establishment and conducted under the firm name of Thomson & Ewing. Ewing disposed of his interests to the late Charles Thomson in 1904 and moved to Portland. He came from Scotland 55 years ago. Since 1933 he had made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Charles Hynd, at Ukiah. Another daughter, Mrs. L. J. Urdahl, resides at Pasadena, Calif. A sister in Scotland also survives. Burial was in Riverview cemetery, Portland.

Emery Crawford is visiting at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ed Thorpe, for a few days.
