TURTLE WALK-OUT

ample of the tough stuff of which cowboys are made, said President Henry Aiken in the role of announcer, who evidenced a like determination in admitting no jinx.

And if there was a jinx, it was put to rout. The success of the show was determined Saturday when Cody Dodson, former Rodeo champ, conquered Wild Dillinger in the last day's bucking to take three-day money along with Saturday's money, and to give the packed stands a good share of the worth of the admission price.

An exhibition by Pendleton's Sons of the Legion drum corps added much color to Saturday's show. while the Condon band augmented offerings of the local bandsters to keep the air filled with festival tunes. Duplicate sale of reserved seat tickets caused some consternation in the stands, but those who did not get their seats proved themselves true neighbors and sportsmen. The error occurred in failing to mark off seats on the plat in confusion during the rush, reports the ticket management, who promise nothing of the sort will happen again.

While Turtle sympathizers did not enter the competition, some of them hung around for the three days and just for the fun of it did some exhibition roping. In such an event, Friday, they lost their jack pot money to Pat Fisk, who stood by the show throughout, as Pat hung up the best time of any calf roping event, 19 seconds.

Pat also came through with best three-day time in the regular calf roping events, 1:13 for three calves. Marvin Myers was second, 1:23, and Edwin Hughes third, 1:29 4-5.

Fisk also placed second in the bucking for the three days, with Kenny Depew, third. In the dogging Frank Smith, Depew and Fisk finished in the order named, Smith's best three-day time being 1:64 4-5. Bill Bosley hung up the best single day time of :27 1-5, Saturday, on a spectacular flying catch.

Jack Deming's beautiful sorrel had the fastest flying hoofs in the Bernard Doherty won the Elks lodge big race of Rodeo, the Morrow county derby, Saturday, while this Nebraska man's string took a good share of the flat races. Joel Byrnes of Touchet copped the relay race day with his string ridden by Harry Buerstatte, while he took first Thursday in the pony express and lost out the last two days to the R. L. Baze string, ridden by Bobby for the first time this year. In this Baze. The thill race each day proved to be the wild horse race in which some of the riders got some nasta spills.
