Level Heads Needed

ABNORMAL forces are at work throughout the world as a result of the European conflict, now nearing the end of the second week. Because of the major nations involved and the vital issues at stake, effects of the war are far reaching. It behooves everyone to keep a level head lest ill-founded hatreds and inhuman greeds consume human happiness and welfare of future generations.

President Roosevelt has taken the lead in asking an adjournment of politics at this crisis and in pledging the administration's cooperation toward keeping these United States out of the war and in maintaining an even keel throughout the country's social and economic structure.

Already he has removed the import quota on sugar to assist in stopping the soaring speculative prices that were invoked immediately news of war's declaration was received. His assurance and that of other governmental heads is given that America has abundant stocks of all commodities. People should have no fear of being denied necessities.

The president, too, has declared in favor of wheat reaching a parity price figure, indicated at from $1.15 to $1.20 a bushel. Beyond that, he will object to uncalculated price rises. Speculators who prey on human welfare will receive no sympathy, it is indicated.

All peace-loving citizens may well uphold the president's hand in carrying out the course being pursued. When civilization itself is threatened, it is well to forget individual differences and man the national fronts. Party politics become inconsequential. It is a time for the higher virtues to come more strongly into play that the very elements of war may have no chance for expression. Greed, hatred, the will for power, vengeful thinking are but the fore-runners of oppression, bloodshed, pestilence and death.

The force of arms, if need be, may be applied to prevent the scourge of the Four Horsemen from obliterating civilization from the globe. No pacifism need be tolerated when such force becomes necessary. Gandhi would have no chance against an Atilla, and the philosophy of passive resistance will not save the world from heartless aggression. Clear thinking, strong arms and brave hearts will defeat the most portentous oppressor. America, with its freedom of speech, uncontrolled press, and other governmental safeguards of individual opportunities to think straight and to act in accordance with individual dictates, is civilization's proving ground. Let us hope that it will not be found wanting.

What About the Elk?

INTEREST this week in the trial of Roy Robinson for wanton waste of meat in connection with killing elk to protect his property, indicated considerable public resentment, especially on the part of mountain ranchers, against the state using private property for creation of game refuges where the nature of the game is such as to be a real menace to property.

Mountain ranchers have been among the best friends of game animals, generally, making little complaint about the deer except in cases where the deer numbers have become burdensome. In the case of elk, however, it is different. It is impossible to fence against elk. The animals are large and consume as much forage as a large steer, a vital item to stock ranchers, especially as in the case of Mr. Robinson who raises purebred animals of high value. And the elk inroads are more serious in a season of grass shortage such as that just ended.

In the early days elk were almost, if not entirely eliminated from Oregon mountains because they were unwanted. They are grand animals and fine in their place, but we wonder if the state is not mistaken in attempting to protect them in territory that has been very thickly settled?

SPARK PLUG AID

Spark plug porcelains break less frequently if removed after cooling, the Oregon Motor association advises. This is particularly true of aluminum cylinder heads, easily expanded by heat.

CLOGGED RADIATORS

If your engine is overheating, look for cool spots on your auto's radiator, suggests the Oregon Motor association. Cold spots after the motor is warmed up indicate a clogged radiator, requiring attention.

FOR FINE WAXING

To get a better polish when waxing a car rub rapidly—but lightly—with a woolen rag. The result, states Oregon State Motor association, beats that following heavy rubbing.

Kinnard McDaniel was in town Saturday from the McMurdo farm on Rhea creek which he now manages.
