No Peace

HITLER'S Danzig radio speech to the world Tuesday interpreted as opening the way to truce since Poland is well in hand, will not lead to peace. That is the assertion of France and England. Prime Minister Chamberlain says plain objective of the allies is to stop German aggression in Europe.

So the picture confronting congress as it convenes in special session at Washington today is that of a prospective prolonged struggle in Europe. America at large, all members of congress and the president are quoted as desirous of keeping America at peace.

A sensible course for peace is to be desired. The last World War taught us the fallacy, however, of "peace at any price." Action—not passive indifference—and that wisely guided, is required to keep America safe for democracy.

Wars of Peace

UNCLE SAM has his own wars. They are wars of peace. One staged last night in Detroit proved complete supremacy of the heavy-weight ring world by that certain colored boy, Joe Louis, as he knocked Bob Pastor out in the eleventh round. As Pastor was the last threat on the immediate horizon, Louis has completely evidenced that his brawn is mightier than that of any other individual.

Another war now waging is that being made by nimrods on antlered denizens of Morrow county's forests. While armed aggressors appear to have the better of it, strategy of the wily buck deer is to keep out of sight; make no counter attacks. The animal strategy will save many deer, but if history be repeated, willsome man will do some of his fellows to death. In this, as in real war, the mighty sometimes fall victim to their own folly.

New CCC Program Starts October 1

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20—Ten camps, representing more than 2000 CCC enrollees, will be conducted by the division of grazing on the new CCC program beginning October 1. Most of the present grazing camps will be retained. There will be three camps in Harney county, three in Malheur, one in Deschutes near Brothers, one in Crook at Prineville, one in Lake at Valley Falls, one in Baker at Keating. Three CCC camps (two under biological survey) will receive mail at Burns, three at Redmond, two at Prineville, one at Canyon City, one at Monument.

Of six reclamation bureau camps three will be in Deschutes county working on the new project; two in Malheur county, one at Vale, the other at Ontario, and one at Merrill, Klamath county. Jefferson and Crook counties will each retain a forest camp. Oregon will have 17 forest camps. No general landoffice camps will be on public domain east of the Cascades, all these being in coast counties. Of three biological survey camps, Harney has two, the third being the Hart mountain antelope refuge in Lake county.

Get Flying Training Cheap at O. S. C.

Oregon State College—Some 30 students here will be able to receive training as airplane pilots largely at the expense of the government, as the result of the approval by the Civil Aeronautics authority of this institution as one of the 166 in the country where training for civil pilots will be sponsored. Applications are being taken for this work from students who will have at least sophomore standing. They will get flying training along with their other college work.

The total cost to the student in addition to normal college expenses will be $40, which goes to the institution to pay for a comprehensive physical examination, insurance, and other incidental expenses. The Civil Aeronautics authority adds $20 per student as its contribution to the cost of conducting a ground school by the institution, and then meets the entire cost of actual flying instruction.

The ground school, consisting of 72 hours of training scattered throughout the year, will begin about October 1, according to Ben F. Ruffner, associate professor of aeronautical engineering, who is in charge of the course here. Planes used in flight work will be kept at the Albany airport, at least pending the development of suitable airport facilities at Corvallis.

The state highway commission has made arrangements to pay off another $1,000,000 on its bonded debt on October 1. This will whittle the highway debt load down to $16,841,710. At the same time the department will contribute $376,613 in interest to coupon clippers who have invested in Oregon highway bonds.
