

Impressions of Trip Told Lions Club

The Golden Gate International exposition at San Francisco lived up to all expectations, said J. O. Turner at the Monday Lions luncheon in reporting his visit there in company with Mrs. Turner. He said that so many reports of the fair had been given that he would not attempt to elaborate. He did, however, commend the Oregon exhibit as being outstanding among state exhibits seen. In the Oregon movie he was positive some scenes were taken from the Heppner Rodeo.

Most impressive part of the trip was made through the big redwoods, while the immense crowds on the beaches near Long Beach came in for mention. It was reported in the papers while there that 50,000 people were on the eight-mile stretch of Long Beach beaches on Admission day, celebrated the Saturday they landed at Long Beach, and from observation Mr. Turner believed the report not to be exaggerated. Another interesting part of Long Beach reported was the Signal Hill oil field. There didn't seem to be any sense in drilling wells so close as were seen in this famous oil field. His brother, Loy, whom they visited at Long Beach, explained that lots were owned by many people and all joined the drilling spree when oil was discovered.

Special music was provided by Misses Marie and Lucille Barlow and Katherine Parker, who sang in trio accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Russell McNeill.

The war in Europe may throw a bit of prosperity into the lap of the state of Oregon. Increased demand for mercury has brightened hopes of the state land board that a 28-acre tract of land it owns in Douglas county may come into big demand. The tract adjoins that on which the Bonanza mine, second largest cinnebar operation in the United States is located. Lewis D. Griffith, clerk of the land board, said that the state might expect to receive as much as $100,000 from the cinnebar on this land on a royalty basis.

Miss Margaret Farley left the end of the week for a visit with her sister, Miss Rosanna Farley, at Hood River.
