Editorial

Not many of you were there to even know that the last rally was very weak and anything but boosting to the confidence of the football team, but maybe they didn't know there was one; at least, most of the players didn't come.

If the attendance last Thursday night was any indication of the amount of spirit in Heppner high, we are sadly in need of a shake-up.

A rally is usually a good way to let the people know that the Heppner team is playing a game the next day. The rally may account to some extent for the few people who attended the game Friday.

You can't expect people to be enthusiastic about a game if the students aren't, themselves.

Costume Ball Success

Say, what is this? Don't get excited, it's only the Girls' League dance. Everyone was there in costume. Did you hear that Dorothea Wilson, in a Scotch lassie outfit, and Hugh Crawford, in an outstanding admiral costume, won the first prizes which consisted of chocolate pumpkins. We don't believe that any of you who were there will soon forget the Girls' League party of October 27, 1939.

Junior Assembly

The juniors entertained the student body last Friday morning with an excellent program. First was a skit entitled "United by Love." Following this, Jack O'Hara was to have given a violin solo, but Mr. Peavy, his accompanist, had his feelings hurt and failed to show up, so we were minus an excellent number. The following part of the program consisted of impromptu talks made by four of the sophomores by way of preparation for Public Speaking, next year. As the allotted time was not quite taken up, the yell duchess and yell king led us in several yells. The next assembly will be given by the FFA on November 10th.

Mustang Play Condon Tomorrow

On Friday, the 3rd, Heppner journeys to Condon to play a return game. Heppner beat Condon, 20-0 in the home game. Judging from past experience the boys expect a harder battle on the other team's home field. This is the next to the last game of the season.

Forty Attend C. E. Rally

Ralph Neill, vice-president of Columbia Union, and Mrs. Warner, Hermiston advisor, were among the officials at the Christian Endeavor rally held here October 27. A party started the evening and refreshments of cookies and cocoa were served.

A short business meeting was held in which Ralph Neill told of the coming Pendleton rally, Nov. 3. A musical program will be held at the Vert Memorial by Homer Rodeheaver, famous singer and trombone player who traveled with Billy Sunday for 20 years as his singer.

The Heppner C. E. paid the rest of its $25 pledge which will complete the union pledge to the state.

The Columbia union will hold its annual convention at Pendleton on Nov. 17, 18 and 19.

Walter Myers, state field secretary, will be at the conference which will be in the beautiful Presbyterian church. A music fest will be held Saturday morning, the 18th, in which all C. E. societies will take part. Heppner's number will be a solo by Lucille Barlow. The Penleton people are expecting about 150 at their rally of which fifteen will be from Heppner.

Some Facts About Our Students

Willard Allen Blake, our 17-year-old student body president, was born September 28, 1922, at Ione. Before entering the eighth grade in Heppner, he attended schools at Ione and Grants Pass. Besides being president of the student body, Bill holds the office of treasurer of the Pep club. Bill has a hobby of collecting match folders and his ambition is to be an advertising agent. He has no definite plans for attending college.

Bill's favorite pastime is Shirley Wilson; his favorite sport is basketball; his favorite song is "Moonlight Madonna." For an income Bill works at the Farmers' Elevator after school hours.

More facts about our students next week.

Fashions

Leading boy's fashion last week was Jack O'Hara in a teal blue sweater with green pinstriped trousers.

Bill Blake wore a wine shirt and slate-blue trousers to set the pace for this week.

The Heppner FFA chapter is giving a father and son banquet November 4, at the high school building. Last year a parent and son banquet was held. This year the boys voted to change it to a father and son banquet. The names of three honorary members will be given at the banquet and each person chosen will be there.

Personals

Norma Prock, who has been out of school all week because of illness, returned to classes Monday morning.

Bill McCaleb was a visitor at school Wednesday afternoon.

Mildred McClintock helped in moving the family to a lower ranch on Dry Fork.

Mr. Blankenship attended a principals' conference at Salem the end of the week.

Margaret and Paul Doolittle and Clara Adams were in Pendleton Saturday.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—This has been a very unhappy week for the 435 members of the house of representatives—or many of them—for on the way they vote on neutrality legislation depends, in numerous cases, whether or not they will be reelected next year. Some are in accord with the views of their constituents as expressed in letters, others are not, and are voting contrary to the requests in their mail.

Until last Tuesday the house had not been permitted to legislate on anything except appropriate money for the expense of the special session. No committees were permitted to meet. The calendar is filled with bills which could be disposed of, but all these were deferred until next year. Members were called to Washington in September and after hearing the president's message were prohibited from doing anything until the neutrality legislation had been disposed of in the senate and sent to the house for consideration.

It was only after members became unruly at their idleness that the administration made a concession; the house could meet a short time each day to enable representatives to make speeches for the Congressional Record, and mail these to their constituents. It was collegians call a "bull" session; just a gabfest.

For the special session each member will receive mileage at 20 cents a mile for the round trip. When the January session comes they will be entitled to collect mileage for that. It will average around $1,000 for each member from the west coast.

Anticipating that congress will lift the embargo on munitions, manufacturers of bombers and pursuit planes on the Pacific coast have not suspended work on filling orders for Great Britain and France. Scores of planes have been shipped overland to the east coast and are ready to be sent across the Atlantic without delay. Under provisions of the "cash and carry" act there is nothing to prevent Japan from purchasing such war munitions as it can pay for from the United States, especially if Japan makes a formal declaration of war against China.

Presidential support has been requested by Rep. Walter M. Pierce of Oregon for his bill to establish a government owned chemical plant on Columbia river to supply Inland Empire farmers with a solution to destroy noxious weeds. Pierce wants to use Bonneville power, and his bill calls for an appropriation of $750,000. Hearings on the measure will be held in January. At the White House the president did not commit himself, but suggested to Pierce that he see the executive next session.

Pursuing the plan to extend Bonneville power as far as possible from the generators in Columbia river, the budget bureau is being requested to approve an appropriation of $10,000,000 for more transmission lines. The project has already received $27,000,000 for this purpose. Request will be made in a few weeks for four more generators, bringing the plant to its full capacity of ten units.

Uncle Sam intends going into fish culture in a big way on the Columbia river and its tributaries. Scientists are now looking for equitable hatchery sites and when these have been located $500,000 will be spent in establishing stations to maintain and increase the fish runs. It is the largest and most comprehensive program of the kind that the federal government has undertaken.

Under congressional act a laboratory is being constructed at Albany,

Calif., to study uses of surplus farm commodities and waste material at canneries. This laboratory is to deal with products of the Pacific northwest, such as wheat, potatoes, fruit, vegetables and alfalfa. The government is seeking to learn how these products and waste material at canneries can be utilized in industry and to discover new uses for the commodities. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace warns, however, that it may be several years before any discoveries are made that will be practical and aid the farmers.

To enforce the wage-hour law, 500 inspectors will be in the field in a few months, compared with less than 100 now; the litigation branch will increase its staff of lawyers from seven to more than forty.

A business census will be taken in January; the population census next spring. Supervisors of each district will receive training in December. Each district will have a supervisor, an assistant, a stenographer and two clerks. Sufficient enumerators will be employed in each district to count noses. Designation of the towns for district headquarters is made by the bureau of census, which relieves congressmen of making the decision between competing communities.

Four O.S.C. Classes To Hold Reunions

Oregon State College—Four of the more recent Oregon State college graduating classes have decided to hold a joint reunion at the time of the 1939 Homecoming, instead of waiting until the usual alumni day at Commencement time, announces Warren Reid, manager of the alumni association. The classes which will meet here Nov. 18, at the time of the California-Oregon State game, are those of '24, '25, '26, and '27. The four classes will hold a luncheon that day and will have special tables at the evening alumni banquet.

Trashy fallow is a valuable means of protecting summer fallow acreage from wind and water erosion. Last year 1100 Oregon farmers used trashy fallow methods on 200,000 acres of wheat land.
