Death Takes C. C. Boone, War Veteran

By MARGARET SCOTT

Funeral services were held at 1:30 p. m., Monday, at the veterans' plot in Lincoln Memorial park, Portland, for C. C. Boone, 94, Civil and Indian war veteran, whose death occurred Friday at the veterans hospital.

Mr. Boone was one of the early sheriffs of Umatilla county, serving several terms. He migrated west in 1867 when all of eastern Oregon was new country and when the Indians were showing resentment over the encroachment of the white men. In 1877 he organized the Fairview Rangers in Umatilla county to combat the Bannock Indians. He was believed to be the last survivor of that war. A native of Illinois, he served in the 6th Illinois cavalry in the Civil war, enlisting at 18.

In 1897 Mr. Boone became a resident of Morrow county, engaging in wheat raising at Lexington, an occupation he followed until 1924, when he disposed of his holdings and moved to Roseburg, living with his son until about two months ago when he entered the veterans hospital.

Both his grandfather and father saw military service before him, the former in the battle of New Orleans and the latter in the Black Hawk Indian war.

Survivors are one son, Daniel B. Boone, Roseburg; and two daughters, Mrs. W. R. Wyrick, Pendleton, and Mrs. W. L. Blann, Scappoose.

WHERE DO YOU STORE ELECTRICITY?

LET ME EXPLAIN:

1. ...we make it fresh

"Electricity is the most perishable of all commodities. When you turn on a lamp or appliance, generators must be ready to turn out electricity for you. It can't be stored... electricity must be made fresh.

2. turbines keep spinning

"But whether you use electricity or not, water continues to spin turbines, steam plants must be kept turning over 24 hours a day.

3. small system handicapped

"A small power system, serving one locality, usually can operate at capacity only a few hours a day. It must be ready to serve everyone, but doesn't have enough diversified homes, agriculture, or industry to bring up its sales average. Even if it purchases its power, a small system is uneconomical, for it must contract the year around to buy enough electricity to carry its peak load on the busiest day of the year.

4. why P. P. & L. is efficient

"Because it serves 21 counties from Idaho to the sea, Pacific Power & Light Company has a greater variety of customers than does any small system which serves but one locality. Thus, for example, when a local cannery shuts down for the year, another type of cannery, a mill, or a mine hundreds of miles away on Pacific Power & Light Company lines may start up to use the power that would otherwise be without a market. The result of this large, diversified system is cheaper and cheaper electricity for you. Proof: in 1925 the average kilowatt-hour used in the homes served by Pacific Power & Light Company sold for 5¼¢, today it sells for 2½¢."
