Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barlow, Marie and Lucille, returned home Tuesday morning from a weeks vacation. Stopping first at Mt. Hood, Mr. Barlow with Lee Howell, Floyd Barlow of Portland and Ray Barlow of Boardman climbed the old mountain on Tuesday last week. Taking seven hours for the climb from Timberline lodge they went to within 150 feet of the highest point on the peak. Mr. Barlow took some interesting pictures from high up on the mountain among them views that might have been taken from an island as clouds lying below resembled a sea of water. Thrilled by the trip, the county clerk said he wouldn't miss the first opportunity to make it again. The Barlows visited in Portland before returning home and the Howells went on to the coast for a longer vacation period.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Miller of Toledo, O., and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Miller of Defiance, O., left this morning after visiting since Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kinne. The visiting men are uncles of Mrs. Kinne's, and the party was on a motor tour of the west coast, leaving here for home.

Mrs. Pearl Wallace of Palouse, Wash., visited here from Sunday to Wednesday with her brother, Clarence Hesseltine. Leaving on her return yesterday morning, she was accompanied as far as Waitsburg by Mrs. Daisy Shively who went to visit at the home of her son, Billy Becket.

CHECK YOUR LIGHTS

When the rear luggage compartment of a car is heavily laden it may cause enough tilt to throw the headlight angle out of legal adjustment, resulting in glaring lights, points out the Emergency Road Service of the Oregon State Motor association. If going on a long trip which involves night driving it is advisable to have the lights checked after the baggage is in place. If lights have not been adjusted to compensate for rear load, the lower beam should be used as a precaution against glare.

HARDMAN NEWS

Hardman School Brightened

By HARDMAN HIGH SCHOOL

Mrs. Harlan Adams and children returned home on Saturday from a week spent at Porter creek where Harlan and Ed McDaniel have a wood camp.

Mrs. Muriel McCutcheon, who taught the lower grades year before last, arrived on Friday from Wolf Creek, and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Knighten over the week end. She was accompanied by her son Glen and they were on their way to Ontario. Mrs. McCutcheon will teach near there next year and Glen will live with his grandmother in Ontario and attend the high school there.

The Marvin Branons are moving from the Jim Burnside house to the Jim Hams house. Mrs. Brannon, who has been receiving medical care in Portland for the last two months, is improved in health.

Mr. and Mrs. John McDonald and son Lewis spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McDonald who are living on the old George McDonald place.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Leathers and Junior came in on Saturday from the Tupper ranger station and stayed until Sunday evening. Junior will be back in a week for school and for his trip to the state fair at Salem as Morrow county's healthiest boy.

Marvin Brannon assisted by Lewis McDonald, is kalsomining two rooms and the halls at the high school building and is otherwise getting things in readiness for the opening of school.

On Sunday, J. E. Craber went to Monument on business. Nick Leathers returned with him, and went on to Heppner to visit his son Mit, who is in the hospital there convalescing after an operation.

Up to Tuesday the weather continued as for weeks, always with a hint of autumn in the air. On Tuesday dark clouds covered the sky, which, together with other changes, indicated storms.

AAA Committee Preparing 1941 Guides

With the 1941 AAA farm program providing more leeway than ever before for county and state variations to meet local conditions, the state committee for Oregon is now preparing the new handbook and other details for putting the program in effect in this state.

Oregon is one of the few, if not the only state, to have the same farmer personnel on the state committee since its organization in 1936. The only change has been the promotion of the first chairman, N. E. Dodd, to the position of western regional director. Other farmer members then and now are Will Steen, Milton, chairman the past two years; John Shepard, Scio; William Enschede, Hillsboro, and Robert Weir, Lakeview.

Final details of the 1941 program, announced late in August, follow closely the recommendations of farmer committeemen at a national conference earlier in the summer, says N. C. Donaldson, Oregon executive officer. Both the agricultural conservation and range programs follow the same general lines as those of 1939 and 1940.

Provision is made for continuing the combined range and agricultural conservation in any area approved by the state committee.

Payment for natural reseeding by deferred grazing and supplemental practices is increased from 75 to 100 per cent of the range-building allowance, to permit ranchmen to carry out to a greater extent practices best adapted to their land. Maximum payment for deferred grazing without supplementary practices is also increased somewhat.

Three provisions which may be applied in individual counties to obtain greater conservation are included in the 1941 program. These may be used in lieu of total soil-depleting acreage allotments in areas where feed crops are not generally grown for market and where greater conservation can be obtained under the alternate provisions.

When an automobile engine uses an abnormally low amount of oil the fact should be regarded with suspicion rather than pride, suggests the Emergency Road Service of the Oregon State Motor association. Excessive dilution of oil in the crankcase by fuel leaking past the pistons may be taking place.

Naturally, oil thus diluted suffers great loss of lubricating efficiency and threatens serious damage to the motor.
