Official Paper for Morrow County

War Brought Home

AMENDMENTS to the conscription bill have been concurred in by the house and senate and signed by the president to become the law of the land. All men between the ages of 21 and 35 will be called upon to register. Later names will be drawn by lot from lists of eligible draftees. No one knows who may be called upon to serve.

For the past several weeks youths have been leaving Morrow county homes to enlist in various branches of the service. And last week came summons to the county's district attorney to report to his national guard company, the guards being slated immediately for a year's regular army duty.

The atmosphere is tensed by this grim preparation for conflict, undeclared. The tread of marching feet makes imminent the sound of battle.

America is turning a grim visage toward Europe. American destroyers are flying the Union Jack where once was flown the Stars and Stripes. American industry is keyed up to supply the materials of war to assist a sister democracy in staying the blows of an enemy that has patently displayed contempt for rights of other nations. Now America is mobilizing its manpower. For what, other than to go all way in a determination that the last frontier between Europe and America shall not fall?

The issue today is not political, though it may have political ramifications. No one who loves America wants war. May the boys now leaving, or yet to leave Morrow county, be spared its horrors. Still, the determination exists that Britain shall not fall, leaving the Americas prey to the forces who are determined to remake the world, whether it be by armed invasion or economic reparations.

The hope is that America is arming in time; that it will offer so formidable an objective that enemies will not dare move against it. That, undoubtedly, is the way our leaders are thinking. Similarity of conditions with those prevailing before Uncle Sam's entry into the World war in 1917 need not be alarming if this prove true. It is for all now to uphold the strong arm of America.

Do you realize the amount of new equipment that has been added to our school during the vacation?

In view of the fact that new equipment is being continually added to facilitate our learning, I believe that most of us realize the intent of the responsibility that should be considered ours, in the use and care of this new equipment.

Besides the new equipment there has been a great deal of time and labor expended in our behalf to improve the appearance of our school. Namely, remodeled library, rest rooms, and shop. The floors have been redone and many of the walls repainted. The girls' dressing room has been redone and greatly improved.

With all of these additional improvements, it should be a simple matter for us students to help maintain the greatly improved appearance of our school by refraining from running and sliding on the floors, marking the rest room and hall walls, leaving gym suits, socks, and shoes lying in the dressing room, leaving waste paper in the desks, on the floors, and in the halls, keeping the library books out of place, and in general keeping our school unattractive.

We may be certain that the faculty will cooperate fully in all these things, and it should be easy to keep the school clean and neat; so that we and the faculty may be proud to have people visit our school.

Sophomores Victorious in Class Rush

The freshman initiation was concluded Friday, starting with the annual class rush in the afternoon.

Before going out to the Rodeo field, the sophomore and freshman classes each presented a short skit. These skits were given to win points for the banner. The sophomore skit won first with 100 points.

The freshmen, dressed as superstitions, were paraded through Main street, the sophomore "style show" following immediately behind. The freshmen won first, getting 100 points.

Out at the Rodeo field, a track meet was held, the frosh and sophs taking part. Some of the events were: Boys, baseball throw, tug-o-war, 100 yd. dash, sack race, relay, three-legged race, bicycle race; girls, baseball throw, 50 yard dash, nail driving contest, tug-o-war, relay race. Sophomores took both boys' and girls' events. Scores, boys 46-9, girls 20-16. Final score of the meet was sophs 166, frosh 125.

As the sophomores won a greater number of points, the freshmen, for the remainder of the school year must have a green pennant, not exceeding 24 inches in length, bearing the class numerals and hanging in the assembly in the place appointed for the freshman pennant.

Friday night the freshmen met at Gilliam & Bisbee's. They were dressed to represent movie stars and comic characters. They were then raced through Main street, with the sophomores close behind with paddles.

From Main street they were taken to the schoolhouse where they were given the third degree. After this, a social hour was given in honor of the freshmen, just to give them the bright side of high school.

Class Activities

During the last two weeks all of the classes of Heppner high school have had class elections. Donald Bennett was elected president of the senior class with Norval Osborn as vice-president, Mary Kay Blake as secretary and treasurer, and Jean Hays as sergeant-at-arms.

Claude Snow was elected president of the junior class. Kay Ferguson was elected vice-president; Connie Instone, secretary treasurer, and Tommy Starkey, sergeant-at-arms.
