

Nyberg Wins Top Honors in State Corn Competition

A young man who spent seven years growing corn as a 4-H club project emerged with the sweepstakes trophy at the fourth annual Oregon State Corn show held in Corvallis.

Clayton Nyberg, 22, of Tualitan, exhibited 20 ears of hybrid corn of Wisconsin variety, which placed first in his district, won the championship of the hybrid class, and then went on to take sweepstakes over all classes. His entry had been selected from an acre of corn which yielded 112 bushels as measured by a disinterested party, although the yield did not figure in the award won.

This year's show was probably more widely attended than any yet held, and the quality of corn was unusually high, according to Oregon State college representatives who staged the show and did the judging. The show was sponsored jointly by Oregon farm organizations, Portland business interests, the state department of education, and Oregon State college.

The hybrid corn growing contest, in which yield and cost of production are considered, and in which three acres are a minimum requirement, was won this year by F. S. Green of Stanfield, with a yield of 125.69 bushels per acre, produced at a cost of only 19.5 per bushel. L. O. Gorman of Crabtree won in western Oregon with a yield of 67.16 bushels per acre, at a cost of 26.8 cents per bushel.

C. A. Marsh of Hillsboro retained his title in the state corn shucking contest by shucking 211.9 pounds net in 19 minutes. Marsh, a former Iowa corn grower, also won the corn growers' judging contest. In the shucking contest shocked corn was husked on a roped-off street.

Class champions in the five classes of the show were: Class 1 (open) E. G. Wiesner, Brooks; class 2 (hybrids) Clayton Nyberg, Tualitan; class 3 (hybrid corn production) F. S. Green, Stanfield; class 4 (4-H clubs) Bill Sperb, Canby, and class 5 (FFA) Jack Heinz, Molalla.

Dr. J. P. Stewart, Eye-Sight Specialist of Pendleton will be at the HEPPNER HOTEL on WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 4th.

AAA Elections Set for Week of Dec. 16 to 21

The election of community committeemen under the agricultural conservation program will take place the week of December 16-21 in this and all other counties in Oregon, according to word received from the state AAA office.

Each community in the county will elect a community chairman, a vice-chairman, one regular and two alternate members, and a delegate to the county convention, at which county committeemen will be chosen the following week. All farmers who participate in the AAA farm program, or who intend to participate in 1941, are eligible to vote in the election.

County committeemen will be on hand to discuss the program at each of the community meetings, and will help with the elections. The community committeemen fill important positions in the local AAA setup as they recommend acreage allotments and establish yields for major crop. They also report proposed improvements of the farm program each year to keep it in line with needs of co-operating farmers.*

Many Elk Taken; Cows Outnumber Bulls

Nimrods who took part in the 1940 elk hunt bagged a total of 2,273 elk, of which 1,127 were bull elk and 1,146 were cow elk. A total of 4,192 hunters checked in and out of the various checking stations conducted by the Oregon State Game commission.

The number of hunters who held only bull tags totalled 2,310, those with cow tags, 982; and the number possessing both types of tags totalled 900.

According to reports received by Frank B. Wire from the checking stations, the elk were in far better shape than in the past. The large increase in the bull kill was throughout the elk area and not concentrated in one section.

In 1939 a total number of 2,022 hunters bagged 842 bulls and 379 cows. In that year only 500 cow elk tags were issued, but in 1940 the commission sold 2,000 cow elk tags.

AAA Payment Checks Ahead of Last Season

Payment of benefits under 1940 AAA program in Oregon is ahead of last year at this time in total number of applications received and approved for payment, although the total amount paid is below that of a year ago, according to a report just made by N. C. Donadson, executive officer at the state AAA headquarters.

A total of 3689 applications had been approved for payment to November 20, amounting to $495,571.74. A year ago only 1565 applications had been approved, although the amount involved was $555,780.52. Because of the reduction in wheat and some other payments the total cash benefit this year will be under those of a year ago.

Counties which have sent in the most applications to date are Umatilla, Hood River, Union, Deschutes, Jackson, Josephine, Klamath, Morrow, Multnomah, Tillamook, and Wallowa.

Water Purity Tests by OSC Show Bad Sources

Oregon State College.—Only an average of 22 percent of the samples of water submitted to the O.S.C. bacteriology department from all parts of Oregon are definitely pure and safe for drinking, reports G. V. Copson, head of the department.

Figures show that 40 per cent of samples submitted are definitely bad and 38 percent are doubtful. Members of 4-H clubs throughout rural and suburban areas are active in having samples sent in for testing, says Copson. Tests are made for purity, odor and hardness of water.

HYBRID CORN GAINS IN STATE

Approximately 12 per cent of Oregon field corn grown in 1940 was from hybrid seed, reports Dr. R. E. Fore in a new O.S.C. extension circular entitled "Hybrid Corn in Oregon." The circular lists 13 Oregon producers of hybrid seed for certification. Dr. Fore believes that the percentage in this state will be doubled next year judging by the speed with which the hybrids have been adopted in the corn belt. This year nine out of every 10 acres in Iowa was planted with hybrid seed. Warning is given never to save seed from a hybrid crop no matter how good the ears are, because the variety "breaks up" in the second generation.
