Winter Term Ends; Third Starts 24th

Oregon State College—The third or spring term here will open Monday, March 24, after a spring vacation which starts March 15. The winter term equalled the largest in history so far as attendance was concerned, and by a queer coincidence, the latest report of the registrar showed exactly the same number enrolled—4544—as for the winter term in 1940.

Some new courses have been announced for the spring term, but no important changes are scheduled. One new course in history will deal with the history of the Pacific ocean area, which is now looming so important in world events. It will be given as a service course for students majoring in any school.

As in previous years, it is expected that a number of students will enroll for the spring term who will be starting for the first time this year. Those who graduate from high school at the end of the first semester frequently start their college course in the spring term.
