

Model Birth Record System Due June 14

Because certificates showing delayed registration of births in Oregon have fallen down as court evidence, a "model" system for registering delayed birth certificates was passed by the last legislature and will go into effect June 14, announces the Oregon State Board of Health. After that date the division of vital statistics will be prepared to issue instructions and forms for delayed filing to persons whose births have never been recorded. It is believed that when recorded, these documents will afford authentic, acceptable proofs of birth.

"Since the present outstanding difficulty is the admissibility as evidence of delayed certificates, the new vital statistics law provides for a method of delayed registration which, it is believed, will give the completed record its maximum evidentiary value," the board reports. "That portion of the law embodies standards set up by the committee on delayed registration of the American Registration Executives, and approved by the U. S. Census bureau. State and private agencies who must pass on individual proofs of birth have indicated their approval. Administrators have assured the committee that certified copies of delayed certificates filed under the model procedure will be acceptable as proof."

The board instructs anyone desiring a photostatic copy of his birth certificate to write to the Division of Vital Statistics of the Oregon State Board of Health at Portland, Oregon. Each request should state full name, father's name, mother's name, and place of birth, and fifty cents, the statutory fee for a certified copy.

State Clubbers Sweep Regional 4-H Contest

Two Oregon 4-H club members have just been announced as winners in the western division in the annual home and crops enterprise accounting competition supervised by the extension service, according to notice just received by H. C. Seymour, state club leader, from the national committee on boys' and girls' club work.

The two winners are George W. Blinco, 19, of Portland, and Marjorie Woodard, 17, of Cottage Grove. Both will receive all-expense trips to the twentieth national 4-H club congress in Chicago next November, provided by the International Harvester company.

Although a city boy, young Blinco became interested in country life and arranged to keep accounts on John Mulloy's farm in Washington county. His work won for him first place in the state and now first prize in the farm division of the western region. He has been in club work seven years.

Miss Woodard has been a 4-H'er for eight years, serving three years as assistant leader. She also won the state championship in home accounting before her record was judged best in the west.

DRAGGING BRAKES

When well lubricated and with brakes properly adjusted the car should be easy to roll by hand on a level surface, according to the emergency road service department of the Oregon State Motor association. Rolling the car in this manner is a test which will reveal whether the brakes are dragging, a condition which causes low gasoline mileage; or whether there is lack of proper lubrication, which causes rapid wear of moving parts.

OSC Commencement June 2 to be Largest

Oregon State College—The seventy-second annual commencement here June 2 will be the largest in the history of the institution in numbers of degrees granted, reports E. B. Lemon, registrar. The tentative list shows students will receive 795 degrees, all earned, as compared with 790 last year when four honorary degrees were given. None of the latter is being awarded this year.

The largest number ever to receive Ph.D. degrees at one time here will be given this highest academic recognition this year. Eight have completed work for the doctorate. Of the remainder, 109 will receive masters' degrees, and 678 bachelors' degrees.

Employment prospects for the graduates are better than at any time in the past decade in most respects, according to reports of school heads, although men who are high

Don't Molest Deserted Fawns, Game Men Say

At this time of the year, when does are dropping their fawns, the state game commission officials and state police are flooded with inquiries concerning deserted fawns.

If you're tramping through deer country and run into a fawn, seemingly deserted, don't molest it, because in all probability its mother is out foraging for food and will be back in due time to give maternal attention to the young one.

The best rule, say game officials, is to just keep hands off the fawns and let the mother handle the situation.

on the selective service list are experiencing some difficulty in finding suitable placement in the interim.

Commencement week end will begin on Saturday with alumni reunions and will include baccalaureate exercises Monday at 10 o'clock.

Local Women Attend BPW Convention

The state convention of Business and Professional Women's clubs held in Portland May 15, 16 and 17, was attended by Rose Leibbrand, Harriet Pointer and Florence Bergstrom. The theme of the coming year's work, "Strengthen Democracy for Defense," was announced by Miss Margaret Hickey, national education chairman. Miss Leibbrand was appointed eastern Oregon district chairman, her work requiring that she act as personal representative of the state president, Evangeline Philbin, for this district covering central and eastern Oregon counties.

The BPW delegates were accompanied to Portland by Louise Anderson who visited friends during the week end. Also returning to Heppner were Mary White and Virginia Dix.
