

Fine Swaggart Horse Has 21st Birthday At Circus in East

Oregon Sunburst, one of the fine creamline horses from the Swaggart farm in Morrow county that have been shown at eastern circuses for several years by Capt. Jorgen M. Christiansen, recently received daily press headlines on passing his 21st birthday. It was while Oregon Sunburst was playing the Police Circus in St. Louis, Mo., that the natal anniversary occurred, and a St. Louis newspaper clipping received this week by Mrs. B. F. Swaggart from Captain Christiansen, related:

"Capt. Jorgen M. Christiansen's chocolate-coated stallion, Oregon Sunburst, which has won admiration of circus fans at the Police Circus, in the arena this week in the swaying rhumba dance it took him two years to learn, was 21 years old today.

"Ordinarily when a horse attains the age of 21, he's due for pensioning in some lush green pasture, but not so with Oregon Sunburst. He's still fit and is ranked as an outstanding performing horse.

"Oregon Sunburst was purchased at the age of 5—in 1927—by Capt. Christiansen, a one of ten palomino horses, trained in high-school work under the tutelage of his trainer, he kept at it for seven years. In one-ring circuses, and in the largest circuses in the country, as one of the troupe.

"In 1935, Christiansen was offered the job of head trainer of a large circus, accepted it and sold his entire stock to that outfit, but in the spring of 1937 the show closed and Christiansen went to Oregon to purchase another set of horses.

"Returning to his Rochester, Ind., winter training quarters with ten dapper Oregon creamlines, he learned that several of his former horses had been sold to a nearby riding academy, Temperamental and accustomed to certain trainers, Oregon Sunburst had proved unsuitable for academy use, and had been placed in a box stall and virtually forgotten. Capt. Christiansen repurchased him, and months later, Oregon Sunburst was back in his prime.

"A palomino, he changes his coat-coloring with the seasons. Police Circus audiences this spring see him as a chocolate-colored horse, with a flowing light-tan mane and tail. This summer, Christiansen said, he will have a yellowish coat and during the winter months he will be a dappled whitish tan, to match his flowing mane.

"Sunburst will receive a corsage for each meal today in honor of having attained 'manhood.' The corsage will consist of extra-special carrots, bright and reddish in color, with plenty of green foliage."

In a letter accompanying the clipping and a birthday picture of the animal, Captain Christiansen said that they were going to Chicago June 12 to play at Soldiers field and would be back there again the 4th of July. He also said that as soon as Mrs. Swaggart has ten or twelve more animals a set of which she is preparing for him, he will be out after them.
