

Designated Speeds, Other Traffic Laws In Effect Saturday

Non-Resident Registration Repeal, Also Scheduled

Oregon's new speed regulations, the new law pertaining to the operation of farm tractors and trailers along the highway, the repeal of the non-resident registration law and other changes in motor vehicle regulations become effective Saturday, June 14th, the day which marks the end of the 90-day period following adjournment of the 1941 session of the state legislative assembly.

After that date, the designated prima facie speed limit on Oregon highways outside municipal areas will be 55 miles per hour instead of 45 miles an hour indicated speed. In cities, the designated speed limits are 25 miles an hour in residential areas and 20 miles an hour in business districts while the speed past school grounds has been raised from 15 to 20 miles an hour.

These designated speeds may be changed by action of the newly created speed control board in the case of areas within city limits or on county roads, and by the state highway commission in the case of state highways. The speed control board, consisting of the secretary of state, the superintendent of state police and the chairman of the highway commission, may act when consulted by city or county officials in connection with changing designated speed limits in cities or on county roads or upon their own motion after traffic engineering surveys. The state highway commission will make changes only on a basis of traffic engineering studies.

Tourists from other states will not be required to register their cars when they enter Oregon after June 14th, due to the repeal of this law, it was pointed out by Earl Snell, secretary of state. Repeal of this law is expected to save the state of Oregon approximately $20,000 annually in administrative expenses.

Of interest to farm operators are changes in the law relating to the operation of farm tractors and trailers on public highways. After June 14th, the amended law will permit farmers living in the area west of the Cascades to operate their tractors along the highway a distance of five miles from their farm without licensing the tractor or trailer. In the area east of the Cascades, the distance is extended to ten miles from the home farm. Under this law, those farmers whose places are within the prescribed distance from markets may haul produce to those markets with tractors and trailers without paying motor vehicle license fees.

The law changing the weight classification for light delivery and pickups which may be licensed for $5 goes into effect July 1st, the start of the half-year period. After that date, vehicles of this type up to 4,500 pounds may be licensed for $5 a year. The present law places a limit of 4,000 pounds on vehicles licensed for this fee. However, the secretary of state pointed out, there has been no change in P. U. C. requirements which provide that commercial vehicles over 4,000 pounds of a private carrier classification which are operated for a distance exceeding three miles from the limits of a city, are subject to P.U.C. fees. Thus, while vehicles of 4,500 pounds may be licensed for $5 a year after July 1st, if they are operated out of town beyond a distance of three miles, they will be subject to P.U.C. regulations.

The grange went on record as favoring the former method of selecting the Rodeo queen and trust that the wishes of people in our locality may meet with the approval of the directors. ### Know Your Egg? Then All's Well

Egg producers and handlers in several sections of the state have been learning more about care of eggs and the state egg law in a series of meetings conducted jointly by the state department of agriculture and the state college. Main purpose has been to coordinate grading so the Oregon housewife may buy eggs with full protection that she is getting that for which she pays.

Only three grades of eggs may be sold at retail: Grade AA, grade

A and grade B. All these must be clean eggs. Dirty eggs may be sold, but only as grade B, soiled. Many housewives do not realize that A grade eggs are very fine eggs and that actually the grade AA egg, held under normal conditions for 24 hours, usually develops a larger air cell than the law allows and so drops to a grade A egg.

Retailers must candle and grade eggs, but farmers or poultry raisers who produce eggs on their own premises may sell these eggs on the place where they were produced without candling or grading.
