Planned Salaries Put Into Effect by Bank

A scientific plan for salary adjustments designed to protect the staff of the First National Bank of Portland against increased living costs is announced this week by E. B. MacNaughton, president. He states, "Salary adjustments under this plan will be made monthly based upon telegraphic reports received from the United States bureau of labor, and for July this increase amounts to over $6400."

"This plan," MacNaughton said, "does not supercede nor conflict with our long-standing program of periodic salary increases based on seniority and regular promotions. It is an over-all additional payment which will continue for the duration."

"Telegraphic advice received from the department of labor indicates that living costs, as of June 30, have increased in Oregon 6 percent over the base figure which the department takes as the average prevailing for the interval from 1935 to 1939. In other words, that part of salaries which is expended for food, clothing, rent, fuel, house furnishings and other items, has been impaired by 6 percent, and we have determined as far as it may be possible to protect our staff against that shrinkage by establishing this plan based upon information coming from an impartial source.

Pedestrian Protection—Helps Walkers Avoid Trouble

Thoughtful persons never cross busy streets without first stopping on the curb, looking both ways, then stepping into the street, according to the state traffic safety division. Look in both directions before leaving the curb.

With statistics showing that nearly half the pedestrians hit at intersections are struck after they leave the curb, the state traffic safety division today reminded walkers they should look both ways before starting across a busy street.

Forty-three percent of the pedestrian fatalities in Oregon occur when the person on foot is not more than three or four steps away from the curb, it was said. This means that too many persons start across the street without making sure the way is clear of approaching cars.

Service Men Eligible For 6-Month Licenses

Men in the military service who have been assigned to duty in Oregon may obtain "resident" fishing and hunting licenses after they have resided within the state for a period of six months.

Under the Oregon game code, a non-resident is defined as a person who has not lived within the confines of the state for a period of six months immediately preceding his application for a fishing or hunting license.

Many men in the service have been under the impression that they could legally fish or hunt without a license or with a resident license before a six month's residence in the state, but the Oregon State Game commission has no power to issue any special licenses for service men. If a man wishes to fish or hunt before he has lived in the state for six months, a non-resident license would be necessary.

For the benefit of persons who desire to fish for a limited time, a 10-day fishing license for non-residents is sold for $3.

members of our staff excepting only 16 'brass hats.' Out of a total of 788 employes in 41 branches, 772, or 98 percent will receive the increase. That reads as though we are about as good as Ivory soap, which claims to be 99.44 percent pure, but let that pass. The idea is that we are helping our staff to keep up with 'the high cost of living.' We have a fine group and we want every one of them freed of living-cost worries incidental to inflation so they can put all their effort into a high standard of service. That's just good sound business, any way you look at it."

'Keep 'Em Flying' Urged by Earl Snell

Assistance in popularizing the war department's new slogan, "Keep 'Em Flying," was promised today by Earl Snell, secretary of state, who revealed a letter from the adjutant general's office, Washington, D. C., requesting cooperation in making the country conscious of this slogan and the importance of this activity to national defense.

The war department has adopted the slogan in connection with its drive for flying cadets and national defense and has asked various public agencies to use it wherever possible.

It is suggested that the slogan "Keep 'Em Flying," replace such expressions as "Be Seen' You," "So Long," and that it be used in letters in toasts and wherever such type of expression is appropriate.

Snell suggested that newspapers and radios could do much toward popularizing the slogan.
