Weedy Barb a Despoiler of Sheep Pelts and Meat

SPEAR-POINTED SEEDS of wild oats, needle grass, poverty grasses, foxtail, and bromes spell trouble in summer and fall for sheepmen of the western states.

Carcass and pelt (1), pierced by the sharp awns, are cut to half value or less. (2) At first, the awns can be spotted (in circle) by parting the fleece, but having passed through the pelt (3) they make a pincushion out of it. By painstaking work the awns can be cut out singly (4), much in the manner of trimming out pinfeathers, but often whole strips of meat must be sacrificed (5), so that the carcass is rendered unsightly (6).

"Weedy Barb," to give it a name, is an affliction grazing animals contract on ranges and pastures infested with awn-seeded grasses. Mechanical injury around the eyes and mouths of grazing livestock is frequently noticed, but in sheep the pelts and carcasses, pierced by thousands of barbs of weed seeds, take a market loss of fifty per cent or more.

The sharp awns, or sheathes encasing the seeds of wild oats, little and wild barleys, foxtail, brome grasses, needle grass, poverty grasses, and others, break off in the fleece of sheep, work their way through the hide, and lodge in the flesh. Increase of the trouble in recent years has given rise to buyers' reports of "wild lambs" from western states, especially California, Oregon, Arizona, Montana, and Idaho. In the green stage these forage plants are succulent but in late spring and summer the seeds ripen and the rough awns catch in the wool of sheep. Then, as one packing house buyer relates, "every movement of the animal seems to propel these needles deeper until they reach the flesh itself, where they fester and cause bloodshot circles an inch or two in diameter."

Some of the animals die, literally stuck to death. The pelts of others, looking like pincushions, have no market, and may be carried a year before bringing $2.50 a dozen as No. 2 seedings.

"When lambs are killed within a month of the time the seed barbs lodge in the wool, the carcasses are severely trimmed by government inspectors," the buyer states further, "which usually leaves a badly mutilated cutter worth about one-third as much as the ones free of grass."

Good management of herds, range, and pastures are the only effective preventive measures, buyers and experiment station specialists alike declare. Lambs may be sheared before the seed is ripe. Sheep may follow cattle which have been allowed to graze the weeds down early in spring before the spear points can develop. Ranges and pastures loaded with weeds at maturity should be avoided, especially in late summer and fall. Single night bedground on the range should prevail and permanent bedground avoided. Open herding should be followed, close herding avoided, and dogs used as little as possible, all to prevent close contact of the entire flock with weedy patches.

In pastures, control of the weeds, most of which are annuals, is simply done by cultivation, and on open lands grubbing out is often resorted to, or soon after the plants have blossomed they are cut or burned.
