Accidents Threat To Defense Program

Emphasizing that a workman killed or injured in a traffic accident may well be as much a loss to the nation as the death or injury of a member of our armed forces, E. I. Snell, secretary of state, calls attention to President Roosevelt's request for American citizens to enlist in a campaign to prevent traffic accidents, and urged Oregonians to hold to the advantage gained in the early part of this year.

"Military authorities emphasize the fact that in modern warfare, the man at the front is dependent on the man in industry, therefore, when a toolmaker, a shipyard worker, or any other workman is vitally needed production is incapacitated in an automobile accident, the loss to the

Growers Buy All-Risk Insurance

With August 30 the deadline for taking out federal crop insurance on fall-seeded wheat for harvest in 1942, Oregon growers are signing a record number of policies to protect their wheat crop from all risks. The scene above is being enacted many times throughout the state—a Triple A community committeeman "signs up" one of his neighbors.

Sterility Facts Revealed in New O. S. C. Bulletin

All the answers to the problem of sterility in dairy cows are still far from being found, but considerable information on some things blamed wrongly for sterility, and on other things that may contribute to it, is contained in a new experiment station bulletin issued at Oregon State college, entitled "Reproductive Performance in Dairy Cattle."

Although the bulletin is semi-technical in that it reports on actual research studies, it is expected to contribute much to the general understanding of the sterility problem. It is well illustrated with drawings of the reproductive organs of dairy cattle and of the reproduction process, a number of these drawings being life size.

Studies of the cow families represented in the O. S. C. dairy herd for the past 25 years have definitely shown the importance of inheritance in good fertility. These and similar studies indicate that much of the low fertility in commercial herds may be traced to poor inheritance and close breeding practices.

Among factors studied and found to be either relatively unimportant, or which so far have failed to show a vital relationship to the problem are vitamin A deficiency, the use of vitamin E injections, and the use of hormone injections, although the last named is still definitely in the experimental stage.

Many non-specific infections in both male and female dairy animals were found to impair their breeding efficiency, although Trichomonad infection has not been demonstrated in Oregon up to the present time. Losses through the sale of dairy animals thought to be sterile but which were not have been found to be rather severe. Between 20 and 25 per cent of dairy cows sold to Oregon slaughter houses as sterile have been found to be pregnant.

The bulletin, which may be had free, is written by I. R. Jones, R. W. Daugherty, and J. R. Haag of the station staff.

Wheat Men Told of Deadline for '42 Plans

Oregon wheat farmers are being contacted by county AAA associations to sign winter wheat plans for their farms prior to the deadline October 31.

Every farmer who will plant fall wheat this year must sign a plan for his farm if he is to be eligible for participation in the 1942 farm conservation program. By signing the plan the farmer declares his intention to seed within his wheat acreage allotment and also indicates the number of acres on which he will have wheat in 1942.

With 1942 marketing quotas already proclaimed and almost sure to be in effect, county offices are stressing the importance of seeding within allotments. Changes in the wheat program for 1942 provide that the non-allotment option can be chosen only by farmers normally cutting wheat for hay and with an allotment in excess of 15 acres. Those with allotments of fewer than 15 acres are exempt from quota restrictions, however.

The state AAA office also points out that it will not be possible for non-allotment farms to seed up to their usual acres, as was the case in 1941, without incurring deductions from parity and conservation payments.
