Big Increase in Cover Crop Seed Sought for 1942

An increase in cover crop seed acreage in Oregon amounting to 52 per cent more than this year's record acreage is being undertaken by Oregon seed growers as the result of a decision reached by more than 300 growers called together at Oregon State college by the Oregon Seed Growers league.

The decision to expand the acreage came as a result of a virtual ultimatum given by the Agricultural Adjustment administration that the seed purchase program could not be continued unless assurance could be had that a large enough volume of seed could be obtained more nearly to meet the demands and AAA commitments in the south. For two years, according to N. C. Donaldson, executive officer for Oregon, the amount of seed delivered to the AAA has not been anywhere nearly large enough to meet the needs in the southern states.

The new proposal by the AAA, and agreed to by the mass meeting of growers, was that if a sign-up of at least 425,000 acres can be obtained for 1942, the following guaranteed price schedule will be in effect: hairy vetch, 10c a pound; Austrian winter peas, 5c; Willamette vetch, 6½c; crimson clover, 10c; common or Hungarian vetch, 5c, and common rye grass, 5c.

All these prices represent a substantial advance over those paid last year, it was pointed out. The agreement also provides that growers will deliver at least half of their production to the AAA next year.

While a minimum of 425,000 acres was set as compared with a seeded acreage of approximately 272,000 this year, it was pointed out at the meeting that "the sky's the limit" and that growers may plant as much as they like with an assured market. Should more be produced than can be used next year, the AAA is eager to establish a carry-over supply for future use in the event of a poor crop yield such as occurred in Oregon this year.

A series of meetings in the counties was arranged by the extension service and AAA committees for the week ending September 13, as the aim is to have all growers contacted and reports in by September 18.
