Scholarships were won by Virginia and Gerald Bauer of Neskowin, whose demonstration of using a milking machine won them second place in the western section competition. They were coached by D. H. Kennedy, county club agent. They were in competition with teams from the 11 western states.

The dairy consumption team from Corvallis placed in the third group of the western section, but did not win any scholarships. They demonstrated the use of cheese in the menu. Both teams received free trips to Memphis from the Kraft company.

Magic: Five Quarts Equals One

The magic of modern dairy industry makes it possible to shrink five quarts of fluid milk into one quart of dried milk. Add water and dried milk powder becomes fluid again. Dried milk is in great demand for export to friendly nations abroad. It takes little space in the holds of ships, stays sweet without refrigeration, and can be used as a substitute for fresh milk for children. The U. S. Department of Agriculture has placed dried milk high on the list of "defense foods" whose increased production is sought during 1941 and '42.

Labor Shortage Cited as Worst Food Drive Foe

Shortage of farm labor is the only serious obstacle in the way of Oregon meeting its goals in the food-for-defense program, in the opinion of county USDA agricultural defense boards, which have held meetings in all of Oregon's 36 counties.

Members of the state board who participated in the 36 county meetings report that, almost without exception, the county boards believed the desired increases in certain strategic crops can be met if enough labor is available to do the work. In numerous instances the county groups were willing to set their goals at a higher figure than suggested for that particular region. Compilation of the county goals is now being made and will, when totaled, constitute the final and official state goals for 1942.

Those who attended the county meetings were practically unanimous in expressing belief in the importance of this agricultural defense effort. As soon as the county meetings were completed a series of training meetings were started for those who will contact individual farmers to get them to underwrite the increased production sought.

Meanwhile community educational meetings will be held to acquaint more of the people with the program, and county defense board members will also discuss the campaign before grange, Farmers Union, and other established rural groups. The farm to farm canvass for the signing up of each grower will start in some counties the last week in October and in others late in November.

Forest Tree Seedlings Free to Youth Groups

Four-H forest clubs or other duly organized and supervised youth groups may obtain forest tree seedlings for farm planting free of charge, according to a new circular just issued by the Oregon state board of forestry. The circular describes 16 kinds of seedlings available from the Clarke-McNary nursery located beside the Oregon State college McDonald forest north of Corvallis.

Orders for trees for organized youth clubs must be submitted thru some official of the club. Trees are, as usual, available also to individual farmers at the rate of $2.50 per thousand, f. o. b. Corvallis. Orders are to be sent directly to the state board of forestry in Salem, and must be accompanied by a signed agreement certifying that the trees will be used only for establishing wood lots, windbreaks, or shelter belts.

This year's list of available trees describes 10 kinds of conifers and eight hardwoods.

HOME COMING NOV. 8

Oregon State College—The date for the homecoming celebration here has been set for November 8, when Oregon State college plays UCLA on Bell field. Ron Davis, senior in agriculture from Deer Island, has been named general chairman to head a large committee to prepare the program for the entertainment of the old grads.

MEMBER.

The state committee has been in contact with the representatives of the state employment service in laying preliminary plans to handle the expected labor shortage in the best possible manner for next year. Closely related to this is the effort to have farmers put all machinery in repair this winter so that existing equipment can handle the maximum amount of work in next year's harvest. Maximum use of existing machinery will make less acute the prospective shortage in new machinery.

THERE GOES A TIRE!
... but why junk the car?

Any car can have a blowout in a tire. But you wouldn't junk the car. You'd just fix the tire—or replace it.

That's very much like a situation that exists in the retailing of beer. Beer retailing has its "flat tires," too—retailers who disobey the law or who permit unsavory conditions.

To protect your right to drink good beer, we of the beer industry want to eliminate the few "flat tire" retailers. Here's another reason: Right here in Oregon, beer has provided employment for 13,238 persons, supports an annual payroll of $11,541,550 and paid $617,020.86 in state taxes last year.

The state, too, has an important stake in the beer industry's purchases—for material, equipment and services—for more than 100 other industries.

Those benefits are worth preserving. You can help us preserve them by patronizing only the reputable and legal places where beer is sold and by reporting any law violations you may observe to the duly constituted authorities.
