

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—Government program for 1942 will center around production of war materials at a rate never before conceived; the elimination of non-essential expenditures by government agencies; the collecting of taxes of every nickel possible; the mustering of the entire man power of the nation, and perhaps before the year is over, a call for woman power.

Main policy for the ensuing 12 months (and 24 months after that) is to bend every energy to the building up of war machines and equipping every soldier and sailor with all the implements necessary to fight the enemy. Airplanes, bombers, tanks, anti-aircraft guns, howitzers, rifles, machine guns, ammunition will be rolling out of factories before next December; it will require about 18 months to properly equip the army now authorized.

The shipyards will be on a 24-hour basis and later in the year, if the plans are lived up to, there will be two ships sliding off the ways every day. These will be merchant vessels. Puget sound yards are filled up with orders for destroyers but they must take on more, or possibly a yard will be established on the Columbia river.

The leisurely building of aluminum reduction plants on the Columbia is to be changed and the work speeded up. The program calls for 1,000 bombers each month, in addition to interceptor and training planes. Hundreds of light and medium tanks each month are now being manufactured and the output of these is to be doubled. The heavy tank, 60 tons, will be in production when the kinks are taken out of the sample which was tested two weeks ago. Anti-aircraft, enough to provide some protection to every city, particularly along the Pacific coast, are now in order, and countless machine guns are to be made for the navy, the merchant marine, for combat troops and home guard.

Rush orders have been given for the making of queer looking balloons, for dirigibles to look for submarines off the coast. Additional munitions plants are being prepared for production in the months ahead, and tons of explosives will be stored in the ammunition igloos at Hermiston.

There will be change in the national capital. Confusion due to the

Feeding Aid for Dairymen Given In New Bulletin

With Oregon joining in the nationwide effort to increase milk production, the state college experiment station has just issued a comprehensive bulletin entitled "Feeding for Milk Production" which is expected to be of material aid in getting more milk from present Oregon herds.

Although the bulletin was not prepared primarily with the present emergency in view, its issuance at this time will assist greatly in helping Oregon dairymen meet their goals in the food-for-victory campaign, believes William A. Schoenfeld, dean and director of agriculture.

The 1940 census shows a total of 61,829 farms in Oregon for the year 1939, and of these 46,203 farms were keeping one or more milk cows, while 33,101 farms were selling dairy products. Thus more than half of Oregon farms are now directly concerned in the drive for greater milk production to supply this country and its allies with vital food, according to the authors of the bulletin, Dr. I. R. Jones and R. W. Morse, of the experiment station and extension service.

The 48-page illustrated bulletin discusses the place of Oregon in the dairy world, the fundamentals of feeding dairy cows, and then goes into detail on the various kinds of feed, the preparation of balanced rations, the importance of minerals and vitamins, and general considerations in feeding.

An appendix contains important statistics for reference, including the average composition of various feeds, comparative costs of digestible nutrients in feeds, and suggested concentrate mixtures for feeding with various roughages.

Aside from the importance of increasing production because of present need, high production per cow is also a vital factor in reducing costs, the authors point out.

Copies of the bulletin may be had from county extension offices or direct from the college at Corvallis.

Milk Control History In State Given in Full

A comprehensive history of the development of public market milk administration in the milk industry in Oregon has just been published by the agricultural experiment station at O. S. C. as a mimeographed station circular of information No. 252. The 26-page mimeographed bulletin is the result of a study made by Gordon R. Sutton, research assistant.

The bulletin constitutes not only a comprehensive discussion of the backgrounds and development of milk production in this state, but also will serve as a valuable reference work with respect to the present milk control law and the legal interpretations of the act which have resulted from various court cases.

Public regulation of market milk resulting from various pure milk campaigns can be divided into two types, according to Sitton. First is the regulation of sanitary conditions, and second is regulation of economic conditions within the industry, designed to make economically possible the development of and the continuance of a supply of milk that will meet with given sanitary standards.

The bulletin is illustrated with a number of charts and graphs applying to special conditions in this state over the past 25 years.
