LOCAL ITEMS . . .

Brothers D. J. and Clifford Conway of Portland were visiting with A. L. Ayers here Sunday, the young men being nephews of the late Mrs. Ayers. D. J. recently returned from an extended trip to the eastern and southern portions of the country, visiting the nation's capital on business.

Miss Beatrice Thomson visited at the home of her mother, Mrs. A. Q. Thomson last week end, driving over from LaGrande. She was accompanied by Mrs. Daisy Shively, who also visited relatives and friends over the week end.

Holmes Gabbert was a Heppner visitor Saturday evening. Recently acquiring large farming interests in the Ione district, Mr. Gabbert is in the engraving business in Portland. He accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mankin of Ione.

Charles F. Bollinger, for several years connected with the Oregon City Enterprise and now with the traffic safety division of the secretary of state's office, was a business visitor in the city yesterday.

Cleo C. Foglesong, district representative of the state department of agriculture, was in town yesterday on an inspection tour. Mr. Foglesong expected to be here until Saturday.

Joseph M. Hayes came over Monday from the Lone Rock ranch to spend a few days on business and to visit friends before starting on his lambing operation, slated to begin the first of March.

Mrs. Hubert Hudson reported this week that her husband had passed the crisis in his critical illness following an appendectomy in Pendleton and is now making good progress toward recovery.

Ellis Cason was in the city today from the Lone Rock ranch.

Farm Machinery Prospects Improve

A brighter outlook for obtaining enough harvest machinery and irrigation pumping equipment to meet Oregon needs this year is reported by F. E. Price, agricultural engineer at Oregon State college, who returned recently from Washington, where he joined representatives from other western states in presenting the needs of this region to the war production board and other agencies. Pumping equipment had not previously been given a favored priority rating, and Oregon had faced the prospect of an extreme shortage of harvesting equipment.

IONE NEWS

148 Names Read for Ione Service Flag

By MRS. ELMER GRIFFITH

One hundred and forty-eight names of Morrow county men and men who formerly lived here were read when the service flag was unveiled at church Sunday morning. A program of music and singing was followed by a sermon by the pastor, Rev. J. Fred Stillwell. The church was recently cleaned and redecorated and now presents a fine appearance.

Sewing for the emergency closet of the Red Cross is completed, according to Mrs. Victor Rietmann. However, the following articles are needed, and anyone wishing to donate either new or used articles will please notify Mrs. Rietmann. The things needed are two sheets, four pillow slips, two cotton nightgowns, two bed jackets, two pairs of bed socks, one enameled pail, one enameled wash basin.

The Ione school board has issued contracts to all teachers now employed. Miss Piluso has resigned.

Walter Corley and his sister, Marianne came up from Portland the end of the week to visit friends. Marianne had the misfortune to be painfully injured in an automobile accident Saturday evening, and is a patient at the hospital in Heppner. Her mother, Mrs. Thelma Coats, arrived Sunday to be with her.

Miss Eileen Sperry was injured in the same accident, and she is recuperating at her home in Ione. Her return to Maryhurst will be delayed until she recovers.

The girls chorus of the Co-operative church will meet next Saturday afternoon at 4, at the W. G. Seehafer home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Turner of Baker visited the first of the week with Mrs. Turner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Engelman.

Mrs. Ada Cannon and son Pete and Jim Ledbetter made a trip to Pendleton Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edison Morgan and Mrs. Morgan's mother, Mrs. Grabil, made a trip to Baker this week to visit Mrs. Grabil's son, Gene, who has passed his first examination for military service.

The American Legion auxiliary will hold a benefit card party at their hall March 7. Bridge and pinocle will be played.

David Ely, Louis Buschke and Howard Crowell made a business trip to Pendleton Sunday from Morgan.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Eubanks and Norton Lundell left Saturday for Los Angeles. The young men have completed a course in the metals school in Pendleton and expect to secure employment in defense work.

Wilma Dobyms was honored on her birthday, February 17, when a group of high school girls accompanied her home on the school bus and spent the night at the Dobyms home. Those attending were Doris Palmateer, Maxine Allyn, June Griffith, Marjorie Peterson, Eunice Peterson, Mary Barnett, Alice Nicholson and Melba Crawford.

Mr. and Mrs. David Rietmann consulted a dentist in Pendleton on Monday.

Food For Victory

To bring to the attention of Morrow county homemakers and their families the importance of "Food to Keep You Fit" meetings were held at six centers throughout the county last week. Miss Lucy Lane, a specialist from Oregon State college extension service, conducted.

Although we have heard and read a great deal about the food conditions in England, we are shocked anew when we hear about their slim rations. Miss Lane told us about the report of conditions in England, as given by the Elmhursts, an English couple who have come to America at the request of the United States department of agriculture to help us organize our food on a war time basis.

Miss Lane pointed out that when we compare the size and population of England to the state of Oregon, we can readily understand why England has had to keep the North Atlantic life line going on outside sources for their food. England is a little larger than half the size of Oregon and has a population of 45 million compared to Oregon's one million.

At the outbreak of the war, England had to reduce the three million pounds of stock feed imported so that human foods could be imported. Almost immediately they slaughtered hogs and poultry, killed half of the sheep and a large percentage of beef cattle, and kept on the average two chickens and a pig. They had to keep up dairy herds, which meant more pasture and feed. Now there are two million acres put into grain crops. Every acre of land is producing to the maximum.

The particular shortages that the Elmhursts mentioned were fats—only two ounces of butter or six ounces of margarine. Sugar is very low. Cheese is missed more than anything else, since it had been one of the chief substances for sandwiches. Meat is very scarce, and they have come to mixing horse meat with sausage. There is practically no fruit, except for a few apples and these are used for children and the elderly folks. Tea is becoming more scarce all the time, and they've come to find substitutes. Milk is at a premium. Children are allowed a pint a day and adults a pint a week—if any. Eggs are received every two weeks, or once a month.

All in all, the English economy is one of scarcity. Paper is scarce—newspapers are reduced to two pages. Gasoline is rationed at five gallons a month.

Miss Lane went on to explain that although we don't expect conditions in the United States to be this bad, we must plan for sacrifices. We need our foods to keep more physically fit and to keep our morale high. This means adding essential foods and dropping off certain unnecessary foods.

When Miss Lane passed a score sheet to the audience so that each person might check his own diet for the day to see if he had eaten adequately, many were surprised to find deficiencies in their own diets. Some weren't getting enough milk, others not enough vegetables or whole grain cereals, and still others weren't drinking six glasses of water.

Starting March 13th, another group of meetings will be held. The topic will be "Planning the Family Food Supply."
