SEEK MORE STATE FUNDS

taxes and the sum raised by the 2-mill elementary school tax. It is estimated that there will be, under the present income tax law, an appreciable excess over this amount each year for the next several years. If these excess revenues are distributed to the school districts of the state, it will tend to equalize the burden of school taxation and to lower the local tax on real property now levied for school maintenance. Each district, as it makes up its budget, will take into consideration the amount that it is to receive from this fund and by that amount will lower its tax on property.
No district during these times will levy a property tax in excess of what is absolutely necessary for its needs. It is to be remembered, however, that the schools are facing a crisis and that, on account of the advancing costs, additional funds will be needed by the school districts of the state in order to survive. If the standards in our public schools had been lowered 20 years ago, this nation would today have no skilled workers in the laboratories and in the factories to carry on war production which is so vital to our very existence, say the sponsors. If Oregon permits the standards to be lowered in our public schools, it will fail in doing its share in the present crisis.

affecting a decision on materials for new elevators is what the government is to do with the surplus wheat now in storage. He believes the stocks should be sold immediately for livestock feed, believing that if it is held it will depress prices, curtail acreage and result in supplanting it with corn for feed purposes and do permanent damage to the wheat growers.

"Unfortunately the appropriations committee tacked an amendment on to their big bill freezing the surplus. I am fighting that amendment as you will see from the Congressional Record of March 9th," Mr. Pierce wrote.
