

STEEL BAN HITS MANY FARM ITEMS AFTER 3 MONTHS

The war production board's recent action prohibiting the use of iron and steel in the manufacture of more than 400 items, will affect many articles widely used in agriculture, the Oregon USDA war board reports.

The order provides that for the next 90 days, manufacturers may make up to 75 percent of the average monthly 1941 production of the specified items. After that period, no more iron and steel can be used to manufacture the items named.

Among the iron and steel articles affected by the order, and which farmers will have to do without for the "duration," after present supplies are exhausted, are:

Cattle stanchions, chicken crates, chick feeders, corn cribs, culverts, feed troughs, fence posts, grain storage bins, silos, dipping and watering tanks, storage tanks, wagon bodies and wheelbarrows.

Metal roofing and siding also will no longer be available, except for maintenance and repair work, the war board reports.

Oregon's plan to conserve farm machinery through encouraging joint use and ownership of equipment has received nationwide recognition, the state USDA war board reports.

An outline of the plan, developed by FSA technicians at the request of the state war board, has been sent to all state USDA war boards in the nation in a memorandum from Fred Wallace, special war board assistant to the secretary of agriculture.

Wallace's memo cited Oregon's plan as an effective program to obtain maximum efficient use of farm machinery.

Clothes Moths in Class With Axis Agents, Says OSC

Clothes moths haven't heard about the shortage of wool for civilian use, or if they have, prefer to pursue their usual fifth-seam activities, according to Lucy R. Lane, extension specialist in clothing and textiles at Oregon State college. Miss Lane says that they can be outwitted, just as can other axis agents, by a civilian home defense program.

She advises going on the offensive, however, rather than sticking to mere defensive measures. One of the best year-around offensives against moths is good housekeeping, such as keeping all floors and rugs well swept. Moths often get a start in a part of the rug under a heavy piece of furniture or close to the wall where it may be difficult to sweep thoroughly. Wool rags or old wool clothes left lying carelessly around the house are an ideal place for moths to breed. Lint or hair in floor cracks or under baseboards, or even dog or cat hairs in the basement, are an invitation to moths to move in.

Ordinarily moths don't bother clothes that are worn frequently, but they soon set up housekeeping in a wool coat or dress that hangs in the back of a dark closet for weeks and months at a time.

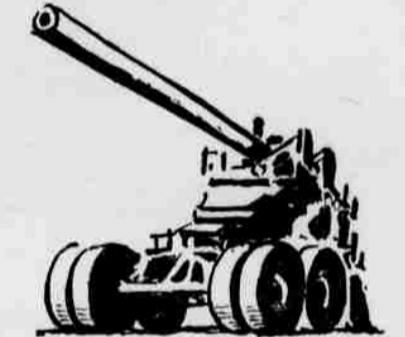

Moths can't stand the bright sun, nor will the larvae remain in clothes if they are given a brisk brushing. The obvious strategy then is to take all wool clothes out of closets periodically, give them a good brushing, and hang them out in the bright sun to air.

Once wool clothing is free of moths, it may be put away in paper bags, wrapped in paper, sealed in boxes, or otherwise stored in moth-proof or moth-resistant containers. As an extra precaution it is well to play safe by adding flaked naphthalene or other forms of moth repellents to stored clothing.

Every year science enables us to get there quicker. We wish they'd figure out something to do when you get there.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The 155-millimeter gun is the modern version of the old "GPF" of World War I days. It has a range fifty percent greater than the old gun, heaving a 95-pound projectile approximately 15 miles. It is capable of high road speed and each one costs $50,000.

Arsenals of America are working at terrific speed turning out this long range, effective weapon for our armed forces. You and your neighbor working hand-in-hand in unity can make possible the purchase of an adequate number of these guns by buying War Bonds. Put 10 percent of your income in War Bonds to help reach your county quota, every pay day.

Repatee is the big man's smart answer to your question. If it comes from a little man, you call it an insult.
