SEASONALITY DETERMINATION
Notice is hereby given that the Oregon Unemployment Compensation Commission has reviewed all seasonal determinations made for the years 1938, 1939, 1940, and 1941 in the light of the Supreme Court decision in Layman vs. State Unemployment Compensation Commission. A list of the employers and their tentative seasons as redetermined by the Commission is available for the inspection of any interested party at any local office of the U. S. Employment Service. Each employer who may be affected by a redetermination is being sent a notice to that effect and instructed to post the notice for the information of his employees. If any interested party believes that any proposed redetermination of seasons is not consistent with the Supreme Court's decision in the Layman Case, he may file a protest with the Commission not later than July 1, 1942. Any worker who believes that he was improperly denied benefits because of seasonality restriction may so advise the Commission through any local U. S. Employment Office. Whenever it is necessary, hearings will be held before a final decision is made. ELLIS H. JONES, Informational Representative. 11-12.

HERE'S A PINCHER MOVEMENT WE CAN ALL USE ON THE AXIS!

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The power of the greatest Navy in the world, our own two-ocean fleet, rests in large measure on its backbone—the Battleships of the Line. They displace approximately 35,000 tons and cost up to $70,000,000. We have something like a score of these huge ships in the Atlantic and Pacific.

Eight huge battleships are under construction and more are contemplated. To finance these modern colossi of the sea it is necessary for every American everywhere to buy more and more War Bonds. We can do it if everybody does his share. Invest at least ten percent of your income every pay day to help your country go over its Bond Quota. U. S. Treasury Department

Chance to Hoard: Stock Up With Flour

Here is one type of food "hoarding" that is being encouraged rather than frowned on.

Oregon householders who stock up now with flour for future needs will be helping prevent loss of wartime food reserves, Robert B. Taylor, chairman of the state USDA war board, said in endorsing the movement to "make every home a granary."

Every extra sack of flour stored in homes now will release more than a bushel of wheat storage space, Taylor said. Oregon wheat farmers are doing their utmost to provide five million bushels of new storage space for this year's crop, but they have been handicapped by scarcity of materials, he said.

New OSC Catalogue Lists Added Degrees

Oregon State College.—The annual catalog for 1942-43 has just been issued here, containing the announcement of two new degree curricula starting this fall. These are mining engineering and degree work in business.

Degree work in mining engineering is now restored as a department in the school of engineering rather than as a separate school such as existed prior to 1932. The complete list of courses for the four years is included in the catalog, showing mostly a grouping of courses already available in various departments and schools, with the addition of just a few advanced courses in mining.

Authorization of degree work in business was given too late to be included in the regular catalog, but an attached printed slip includes the official resolution of the state board of higher education authorizing work starting the fall of 1942.

"It is expected that definite curricula and courses leading to proper degrees may be announced in advance of the opening of the new college year in September, 1942, when Oregon State college is authorized to accept students for this approved type of training," the statement adds.

"The state college already has a two-year curriculum in business administration in which freshmen and sophomores may enroll with such adjustments as may be deemed desirable, and students who have completed this lower division work or its equivalent to their needs and in harmony with the program approved by the board."

was proposed by a Bremerton, Wash., newspaper, and has been endorsed by the governors of the three north-west states.

Perhaps the surest way to promote such buying would be to hint at a possible shortage, but that would certainly be stretching the truth, says Taylor.
