

Mrs. America Meets The War

Looks as if the wooden ice box will be back in the American home. The ice box is one of many items in which wood will be replacing metal. And you'll probably be seeing more wooden wash tubs and pails around the house than you have for years. However, the high quality timber will go first of all for military purposes.

Are you turning in all the used collapsible tubes around your house so the tin can be reclaimed from them? The turn in of old tube when buying new tubes of tooth paste or shaving cream is bringing in 40 tons of critical materials each month. But WPB officials declare the amount isn't satisfactory. Of course, ever since the WPB order limiting use of tin in containers, many tubed products now are being packaged in other types of containers. However, the WPB says there are still many filled tubes in stock or in the hands of consumers. So make a more earnest effort to see that all the old tubes are turned in.

Uncle Sam is trying to keep family ties as strong as possible despite the increasing need of war industries for women workers. The War Manpower commission pointed out that the first responsibility of women with young children, in war as in peace, is to care for them in their own homes. The WMC is urging that no women with young children be encouraged to seek employment in industry if it deprives their children of necessary care, until all other sources of labor supply have been exhausted. However, the choice is left to the individual, and if women with young children join production lines, efforts should be made to provide adequate nursery care through community projects.

Do you have broken china to be mended? Does your mirror need resilvering? Yes — well, milady, you're not in such a bad fix as you might have been. Charges for all of these services are price controlled. In a revision of the service price regulation, wholesale, commercial and industrial consumers are to receive the benefits as well as you, the ultimate consumer.

The country's babies should be able to keep warm this winter with adequate stocks of garments of all-wool worsted spun yarn. The WPB will give knitters priority assistance to obtain additional quantities of yarn for making knitted outdoorwear for tots up to three. That includes hoods, sweaters, leggings, creepers, mittens, sacques and carriage robes.

Stamp Number 8 in your War Ration book will be good for the purchase of five pounds of sugar at any time in the ten-week period between August 23rd and October 31. The amount obtainable by this stamp will make it possible for your corner grocer to dispose of his stocks of five, ten and 25 pound packages of sugar.

While on the subject of sugar, let's consider some benefits of price controlling this commodity. Granulated sugar climbed from five cents a pound in 1914 to 27c a pound in 1920. During the war, government controls held prices at 10c a pound, but when the control was taken away after the war, it shot up to an average of 18c a pound in 1920, later that year going to 27½c a pound. The following year, 1921, deflation brought the price down to 6½c. During this war sugar has had a low price of 7c a pound in March, 1942, when the general ceiling went into effect.

The student loose-leaf notebook — long a familiar item in the equipment of many a school boy or girl — is on its way out. Its manufacture is forbidden by a WPB order which eliminates certain styles of notebooks using iron and steel. Pocket memorandum books also are on the list to go.

One of Wisconsin's prize bulls has contributed to the scrap rubber drive. Correcting King Controller, on the farm of E. J. Gongler, near Milwaukee, has given up the old rubber tire he used to bunt around his pen for relaxation. Now he works out on a block of wood.

Sept. 30 Deadline for Fall Wheat Insurance

Only one month remains in which Oregon winter wheat growers can insure their wheat crops against all risks for the next three years, the state AAA office reminded yesterday. Closing date for insuring fall-seeded wheat is September 30.

The large number of applications for three-year federal crop insurance received to date indicate that most growers do not want to take chances with crop failure, despite two years of bumper crops, according to Clyde Kiddle, state crop insurance assistant.
