

LIVESTOCK SPECIALIST AT OSC GOING TO CHINA

OREGON STATE COLLEGE—R. G. Johnson, head of the animal husbandry department here, said been selected by the state department at Washington, D. C. to join a party of American agricultural specialists who will spend a year in China assisting that government in developing its agricultural resources.

Professor Johnson will take a year's leave of absence to fill this important government assignment, says W. A. Schoenfeld, dean and director of agriculture, who added that the appointment is a high compliment both to Professor Johnson and this institution.

Professor Johnson is a graduate of Oregon State who later spent four years on a Wasco county stock ranch before entering the extension service as county agent in Grant county. In 1935 he was transferred to the instructional staff here and was recently named head of the animal husbandry department. He goes to Washington this month and thence to China by an undesignated route.

RETURNS TO TEACHING

Mrs. Anna Q. Thomson has taken up residence at Pine City for the winter. She has been called from retirement to accept a teaching position in the school there and since transportation is somewhat of a problem she expects to spend most of her time at Pine City.

BOOKWORMS MEET WITH MRS. PETERSON

Mrs. Ture Peterson was hostess to the Bookworms at her home Tuesday evening. Beautiful fall flowers enhanced the rooms. Mrs. Lera Crawford gave an interesting review of Werfel's "Song of Burnadette". Mrs. B. C. Forsythe was a guest of the club. Mrs. Forsythe is an active member of the Fortnightly Study club in Ashland. At the conclusion of the evening, Mrs. Peterson served attractive refreshments.

VISIT CENTRAL POINT

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Gertsen returned Saturday night from southern Oregon where they spent a week visiting at the home of Mrs. Gertsen's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Amhorn and young son, William George who was born Sept. 24.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Crawford, ranchers of the North Ione district, were transacting business in Heppner Tuesday.

Our Men In Service

Pfc Richard Hayes writes his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hayes that he is greatly enjoying a family in Australia who have opened their home to the boys in khaki. He reports seeing Pine Thornburg of Lexington and Delbert Robinson of Hardman in Australia and they are the only familiar faces he has seen since beginning his soldiering. He says the girls are good looking and friendly, causing some of the boys to consider remaining there but as for himself, he's coming back when the time comes.

Word from Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gemmell this week is to the effect that their son, PFC Jimmie Gemmell, has been transferred to the medical detachment at Fort Stevens and that he is now driving ambulance and has received his first "hash mark". (Just what the "hash mark" is was not revealed, but to a layman it indicates a corporal's stripe—maybe). Jimmie has had three years with the national guard.

Pvt. Douglas Drake has written his mother, Mrs. Ray Drake, that he recently received orders to sail to a tropical climate. Douglas has been stationed at Angels Island, California since his induction. A member of the 20-year-old class, he was supposed to be in non-combat service and could not explain why he was being sent overseas at this time.

Joe Gilleese writes from Sioux, City, Iowa, that he recently was transferred to that point and it is his belief, along with some of his buddies, that training at this army air base is the final step before taking off for foreign service.
