

IONE NEWS

By MRS. ELMER GRIFFITH

The Ione P. T. A. met Wednesday at the school house with the president, Mrs. James Warfield presiding. Routine business was conducted and a resolution was adopted, instructing the secretary to write the parents, informing them of the present insanitary, expensive and unsatisfactory conditions with regard to the towels used in the shower rooms, and requesting that parents furnish two towels for each of their children or money to purchase same. It will then be possible to have the towels washed, and for each child to have a clean one each time he takes a shower. Bert Mason gave a very interesting talk on the early history of Ione. OUR DUTY TO VOTE

Heppner, Ore. Oct. 28, 1942

To Editor of Gazette Times: May I have space in your paper the voters of Morrow county to go this week to remind and urge all to the polls and vote.

This is our duty and it is a great privilege. The people in this country I believe, are fighting on the home fronts to remain free, which involves the right to vote as we please.

I believe our two party system a far better way that the way of the Nazis, Facists and the Communists who believe that free voting is out of style, because they believe there can only be one united government headed by one man.

If you believe that their way is best, then "stay home," do not vote. But if you believe in our form of American governments, then go to the polls and vote. Men have fought and died and are fighting and dying this very day to protect our right to do this.

I would like to urge the voters throughout this nation to exercise their sovereign right more carefully than ever before. If you love your country, seek to know the men and their policies who are going to govern it for us. Let us not forget to vote Nov. 3.

A voter who loves her country and who is deeply grateful for all the privileges we have.

Mrs. America Meets the War

Editors note: War touches every home and every citizen. This column, based on official government information and prepared by the Office of War Information, shows how the war will effect Mrs. America and her home.

Pennies from heaven are not sought by the U. S. mint, although the coppers stored away in your "piggy bank" will be more than welcomed. Turning your penny savings into war bonds and stamps will be helping save tons of metals vital to the war. In order to conserve strategic materials, the government has curtailed production of pennies. So the more one-cent pieces that return to circulation, the less demand for new coins. And the pennies add up. If each family were to return to use just 100 one-cent pieces, it is estimated that the increased national supply would save more than 1,000 tons of copper.

Oh, lady, spare the can opener as a contribution to the war effort. The war production board is urging housewives to reduce purchases of canned goods by one container a week to make available tons of steel and tin for containers carrying food to the armed forces and Allies. If every homemaker would participate in a "one-can-less-per-week" drive, it is figured that nearly 190,000 tons of steel, over 2600 tons of tin and about 77 tons of rubber would be saved.

Cutting down on the purchase of canned foods, should not mean less food for Mrs. America's family. While pantry shelves have fewer commercially canned foods, buy fresh vegetables and fruits whenever they are in season. And then to further increased foods available for civilian use this winter store, can or dry the fall season's surplus of fresh fruits and vegetables. And here's a thrifty suggestion—save imperfect fruits and vegetables too. These can be made into peach and apple butter, or canned as assorted cut-up fruits for salads and for fruit cups, or as mixed vegetables for winter soups.

Mrs. America will be able to get three pounds of sugar on war ration stamp No. 9, but it must last her from November 1 through December 15. Stamp No. 8 will not be valid after midnight October 31.

When figuring out the family's weekly quota of meat under the share-the-meat plan, don't count children in for the regular 2.5 pound per person allowance. The food requirements committee suggests that children under six receive three-fourths of a pound of meat, beef, pork, veal, lamb or mutton, in meals during the week. And the youngster between the ages of six and 12 should be allotted 1.5 pounds of these meats regularly.

Rent your spare room to war workers and you'll be helping to speed war production. The national housing administration reports that war production already is being affected by the lack of decent living quarters for workers. The demand for housing has become so urgent that in more than 50 overcrowded war production centers the government plans to lease privately owned homes and buildings or remodeling into accommodations for war workers. The converted properties will be rented and managed by Uncle Sam for the duration, and then will be returned to their owners within a reasonable period after the end of the war.

you will not be eligible for gasoline when nation-wide rationing begins if you own more than five tires for any one car. And if this is the case, turn in the extra tires regardless of their condition, keeping the best for your car. Just call the Railway Express nearest your home to have excess tires picked up. They may either be given or sold to the government. And it is important to note the serial numbers on the five tires you keep since these will be required on your application for a mileage ration. Serial numbers re indented in the tire wall, never raised.

From where I sit . . .

LAST Saturday night we were setting around Jeb Crowell's house, and from upstairs we hear the squawks these Crowell youngsters put up while their Ma was dunkin' 'em in soap and water. Causes Jeb to comment:

"Just shows how times change. Used to be a law here in America that nobody could take a bath without a doctor's prescription!"

Then we got talking about the funny laws some people have put through in this country—like the state where they made it against the law to wake a man up if he's sleeping on the railroad tracks.

"Railroad law I once heard about," says Basil Strube, the stationmaster, "said when two trains meet at an intersection, neither can proceed until the other one has gone ahead."

"How could that be a law?" asks Pete Swanson. "That just don't make sense."

"Lots of laws don't make sense," says Jeb. "Why just think! We're livin' in a land where most folks hold for tolerance and understanding. And yet it wasn't so long ago we had a law of Prohibition. Account for that, if you can."

Well, he had us there. Here's America—where we set so much store on seein' the other fellow's point of view—havin' such a law. Now that it's all over, it's hard to realize how people put up with a law like that, even as long as they did.

From where I sit, a man's got every right to enjoy a satisfyin' glass of beer when he wants to quench his thirst. Beer's a friendly drink. It's a drink of moderation, too. And most folks—even the ones that don't drink beer themselves—are tolerant enough, nowadays, to respect the rights of folks who do.

I reckon Jeb was right—we've had some mighty strange laws in this country.
