

Women Playing Important Role In Chemistry

Women are playing an increasingly important role in the war effort and one line of endeavor of which little is known in this part of the country is the field of chemistry. According to Mrs. Wanda D. Campbell, wife of Arthur Campbell, formerly of Lexington, there is a good field for those who want to take up this important link in the chain of national preparation for both offensive and defensive operations.

Mrs. Campbell is a junior chemist in the government laboratory of the Wabash River Ordinance Works. This laboratory, which does chemical analysis and research, is in the inspection division of ordinance engineering. To equip herself for this important work she took a refresher course at Rose Poytechnic Institute at Terre Haute, Ind., which regards her as one of its most outstanding war training graduates. She is urgent in an appeal to women who have aptitude in the subjects offered by the engineering school to enroll for training that they may become laboratory aids.

Mrs. Campbell majored in chemistry at the University of Oregon and received her MS degree in physiological chemistry and nutrition at Iowa State college. A woman of unusual capacities and wide interests, she diverted her civic, social and cultural energies into the channels of war work when the need arose for her type of service.

Mr. Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Campbell of Heppner, is a widely known chemist of the middle west and has written a number of books of recognized merit on scientific subjects.

Hoarding Leads Not To Good Citizenship

Hoarding not only violates the tenets of good citizenship but it can very easily lead to serious consequences for the hoarder, according to an announcement received today from the war price and rationing board, Office of Price Administration.

The communication warned that excess stocks of rationed goods would have to be declared and the equivalent number of stamps surrendered at registration time, and stated that severe penalties await those who fail to comply.

But, such penalties will be meaningless if, through hoarding, supplies are withheld at this time from our boys in the armed forces, the article stated. The department of agriculture has issued a statement showing the percentages of America's food that must be diverted from civilian use under the rationing to meet military and lend-lease requirements. About 50 per cent of all canned and dried fruits and vegetables must be diverted from civilian use for the military.

When these reasons for rationing are understood by the buying public, it is asserted, the urge to hoard will gradually disappear and good citizenship will prevail.

ANGLIN SEND GREETINGS TO FORMER NEIGHBORS

A communication from Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Anglin was received too late for publication last week and as they sent New Year's greetings to their many friends here it is being published this week. Dated at Yakima Jan 4 and addressed to the Gazette Times, the letter reads as follows:

It has been several months since we have said "hello" to our dear friends in your community and county, so wish to take this privilege of extending to them one and all our New Year greetings.

We surely miss all the good old friends there and look forward to our weekly visit with them through the pages of the Gazette Times.

We are all well these days and kept very busy, which is nothing to be expected in these days of labor shortage.

We have been very busy this past summer with the Gideon organization having had charge of the music for them in some 25 meetings in different denominations throughout the city and county, raising funds, as you know, to place testaments in the pockets of our soldier boys. To date some 4,000,000 boys have been supplied with these in our armed forces through the Gideon organization and the people's cooperation.

Along with this we are assistant superintendent of the Union Gospel Mission of Yakima, a mission backed by some 25 different church denominations, and also supervisor of a division of a large Sears, Roebuck store of this city. We are enjoying all of this work very much.

Our very best regards to all the readers and friends and our deepest sympathy to all who have suffered the loss of a loved one.

Your true friends,
The Anglins.
