CAN PRODUCE ALMOST Anything!

THE trees of America's 630 MILLION ACRES of forest land are going to be the source of thousands of new science-created articles before long . . . that's why the forest industries are seeking to place their timber lands on a basis of continuous crops . . . that's why many forests are now managed so that they will yield successive crops without destruction of the woods.

Already we produce paper, rayon, chemicals, plastics, textiles, and insulation from our forests. These are only a pre-view of things to come.

Great industries can be built on the utilization in new forms of inexpensive, abundant wood, because Trees are a Crop. With the kind of help nature is now receiving through the scientific management of the forest industries, the future of these new industries is secure.

This company has placed its properties on a basis of permanent operation.
