WOOD HAS A JOB IN PEACE ... as in war

PARTNERS in the new
"AGE OF WOOD"

WOOD for cabins was the first raw material used by settlers on this continent. Today, it is a wonder-material.

Hand in hand with chemistry, wood has entered a new age of usefulness. It is called our "most versatile raw material" with good reason.

From wood come homes, factories, ships and planes. From wood come soft fabrics, sugar, paper, motor fuels and lubricants. From wood—compressed, in plies, or chemically treated—come substances stronger than steel, that can be twisted into any form, molded into any pattern, plastics of expanding usefulness.

Four thousand five hundred uses of wood have been counted, without reaching the end.

How fortunate it is that this vital product grows. It can be grown and harvested, again and again, a perpetual servant to mankind.

Forest Fact!
The annual growth of new wood on an acre of trees will yield more sugar than an acre of sugar beets or cane.
