2,665,000
HOMES
A YEAR!

THAT'S a lot of homes, nearly three times the number built in our busiest home construction year.

To build that number of homes would require 11,300,000,000 cubic feet of wood, which is getting into astronomical numbers.

Yet American forests grow that amount of wood every year.

American forests are devoted to the immense war job today, but when peace comes they will start building homes again, perhaps at the rate of a million a year for ten years.

There'll be plenty of wood for homes and other things, too, including this paper you're reading. The reason lies in the growth of trees. It's a job of forest managers to help protect them from fire and other losses, to keep them growing for the needs of America.

All of us PAY for forest fires
