

Lexington Soldier's Picture Appears in National Magazine

By Mrs. Ruth McMillan

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dinges received a V-mail letter the past week from their son S/Sgt Danny Dinges who recently arrived in England. To quote Danny's letter in part: "It is most gratifying to see the wonderful job that the American Red Cross is doing here. They certainly deserve lots of credit. The scenery is magnificent and the climate is similar to home."

In March 6th edition of Life magazine is a photograph of a procession of American soldiers marching along in training somewhere in England. Mr. and Mrs. Dinges were thrilled to find their son Danny in the foreground.

Bill Miller of Spokane recently arrived to join the staff of mechanics employed at Jackson Implement company. Miller's family will come as soon as a house can be located.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Mikesell of Toppenish, Wash., Mrs. James Pointer of Selah, Wash., and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Gray of Stanfield, visited their mother, Mrs. Nettie Davis over the week-end.

Jean Barnhouse, daughter of Mrs. Eula Barnhouse, received a bad cut on her forehead when she fell from her tricycle this last week. She was taken to Heppner to a physician. Two stitches were taken to close the wound.

The Red Cross drive is progressing on schedule and will probably be completed this week. From all indications Lexington community will exceed its quota.

DOODLE?

SURE, it's a doodle—a forester's doodle—but there's nothing funny about it.

To a forester, trees add up to things men can use—homes, paper, fabrics, plastics, even food.

But a forest, plus fire, is less than nothing, because many years of planning, of growing, of forest management, have gone up in smoke.

A forester fears lightning, for it sets many fires. But more than lightning, he fears man. Man starts nine forest fires for every one caused by lightning.

It's a personal problem. It's your problem. It's our problem. For if all of us were to control our carelessness, the nation would be richer by $40,000,000 a year, our annual forest fire toll.

All of us PAY for forest fires
