Shortage of Feed Forces Reduction Of Livestock

The statewide program for reduction of livestock numbers on Oregon farms in view of prospective feed supplies was supplemented recently by War Foods Administrator Marvin Jones, according to County Agent C. D. Conrad.

"Despite the greatly increased feed production and the imports of all the feed that our transportation facilities would permit, there is still not enough feed to supply the number of livestock we now have," Jones said. "It will be necessary to adjust our livestock and poultry numbers to the available feed supplies. The balancing of livestock and feed supplies will be in the real interest of the livestock producers themselves. They are the only ones who can accomplish it."

This year's food production objectives for Oregon suggest the greatest reduction in beef cattle. For three successive years Oregon farmers have increased the number of beef cattle, dairy cattle and hogs, Conrad says, and current feed supplies in general are not adequate to insure a sound feeding program.

"DEVIL" TURNS ORCHARDIST

Lauren Corwin, erstwhile printer's devil at the Gazette Times, has gone to Hood River to spend the summer on his grandfather's farm. Contrary to the general assumption, there are good devils and Lauren is one of them.

OLD FRIENDS MEET

Sunday callers at the O. G. Crawford residence were Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Calvert of Ordnance.

Calvert is the Union Pacific agent at Ordnance where they have been located since the first of November, 1942. He was agent at Joseph for 24 years and it was there that the Calverts and Crawfords became friends.

MOVE TO MEDFORD

Ralph Wilson is preparing to move his family to Medford where they will live for the duration while he is in service.

IN NEWBERG

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Bengé drove to Portland Sunday where they consulted an ear specialist. While away they visited at the home of Mrs. Bengé's sister, Mrs. Frank Baird of Newberg.

Farmers Urged to Make Labor Needs Known at Office

Farmers of Morrow county have been asked to cooperate in making their expected labor needs known immediately to the county farm labor employment office so that arrangements may be made to get every possible farm worker on the job, R. B. Rice, Morrow county farm labor assistant said this week.

The Morrow county farm labor office at Heppner is recruiting all the workers it can to help harvest the war crops, but it needs to know as far in advance as possible the needs of both full-time and seasonal helpers, Rice explained.

Teen-age boys and girls, working both as individuals and in organized groups, will provide the biggest potential farm labor supply in Morrow county this year, Rice said. Farmers needing one, two, a half dozen, or more boys or girls for seasonal work in crop harvesting or for full-time summer work may make their needs known at the county farm labor office, where the placements are being made. Women will also be available in most communities.

These boys and girls have been informed through the schools in most instances of the necessity for crop workers this year and many of them are signing up for work in the fields.
