Our Merchant Marine

They Should Know

Our Navy relies on the Merchant Marine

"No maritime nation has ever been able to fight a war successfully without an adequate Merchant Marine," declares Admiral Ernest J. King, Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Fleet

Our armies everywhere are dependent upon our Merchant Marine

General Dwight D. Eisenhower says: "When final victory is ours there is no organization that will share its credit more deservedly than the Merchant Marine."

Plans of the Chief of Staff hinge upon the Merchant Marine

General George C. Marshall declared that our Merchant Marine is making it possible to transport fighting men and supplies wherever they are needed to defeat the enemy."

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

What Made Our Invasion a Success?

With 57 blue stars on our Service Flag, our town's been mighty excited over the way things are progressing on the Continent.

"Shucks," says Bob Newcomb happily, "I knew we were going to lick them Nazis, soon as the Invasion started."

"I knew it before that," says Doc Hollister. "I knew it from the way our boys were getting along with their British buddies in those English camps. They had a lot of differences to overcome before they could work together as a team. And they overcame 'em."

From where I sit, Doc's mighty right. The success of our Invasion began months ago—when the English Tommies and the GI Joes got together over friendly beer, and games of darts—and learned to like each other in spite of differences in tastes and habits.

And that spirit of tolerance and understanding between men and nations will go far towards building a secure Peace, too.
