Two seagulls were flying high over Cambridge one Saturday afternoon, when one of them noticed some unusual activity on the Charles river far below.

"What is going on down there?" he asked.

"Oh," said the other, "that's the annual Yale-Harvard boat race. I just put everything I had on Harvard."—Wichita (Kas.) Democrat.

EXTRA CAUTIOUS

"Now, Bill," said the shipyard worker's wife. "I want you to see the minister about having the baby christened."

To which Bill replied: "Nothing doing, no one is going to konk my kid on the head with a bottle."—General Petroleum News.

How Different Will be Post-war Homes?

Matt Doorly, our local carpenter, has been showing us architect's drawings of the kind of post-war houses that we're going to live in. Some of them look like squared-off dominoes; some are streamlined like they were going to fly. And they're all filled with fancy things like air-conditioning and what-not.

"Sure change our home life!" Matt says importantly.

"Shucks," says Dan Mason, "it isn't the shape of a house, or the gadgets in it, that make up your home life."

"What is it then?" says Matt.

"It's the little things," says Dan. "Like a well-worn chair before the fire—and a good book—and a friendly glass of beer after a hard day's work. Little things, that are a part of living."

From where I sit, Dan's absolutely right. And I think the men who dream of home from overseas agree—that it's the small, familiar pleasures, that add up to home.

These are busy times—especially so for the one who has to plan and prepare the meals for the family, for she too is doing her share of war work.

It will be a boost to her's and the family's morale to eat out occasionally—to enjoy one of our STEAK DINNERS, or an oyster supper, or any one of the wide variety of excellent meals to be found on our bill of fare. Come any time... we're always prepared.
