Unwelcome Earwig Can Be Evicted Says County Agent

The European earwig, uninvited guest of many Heppner gardens and homes, can be successfully evicted with the use of bran bait, according to Arnold Ebert, who reports that the poison is now available at the county agent's office. The earwigs, which do most of their prowling at night, feed mostly on vegetable matter and small insect particularly plant lice, Ebert says. While they do some damage to most flowers and garden vegetables, their presence in the homes makes them particularly undesirable, to say the least.

As the earwigs feed at night, the bait should be scattered in the evening, giving a thin scattering over the yard and special attention to baiting along board fences, about trees, the foundations of buildings and in gardens where the insects lurk in numbers. Care should be taken not to irrigate the lawn until the bait has been out at least two nights.

The bait contains a poison, sodium fluosilicate and should be kept the baiting of poultry yards is not out of the reach of children. Also advised, although chickens must eat a large quantity of the bait before ill effects are noticeable.

Recipe for a Perfect Marriage

Dee and Jane Cuppers celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary last Saturday. Having so many friends, it seemed like half the town stopped in that evening to pay their respects.

Little Ida Moffat brought a home-made poem to read, called Love Enduring. Bert Childers fiddled "Silver Threads Among the Gold." Will Dudley made a speech and proposed a toast.

And as I watched that toast—Dee with his glass of beer, Jane with her buttermilk—I thought to myself: There's a recipe for happy marriage. Two folks with different tastes—no doubt an honest fault or two—who through the years have learned to live in tolerance and understanding.

From where I sit, Dee and Jane are a mighty good example to young married people of today—an example of how moderation, tolerance and understanding can build lasting happiness and solid homes.
