

BOARDMAN NEWS

By FRANCES SKOUBO

The senior frolic was held in the gym Saturday evening with a large crowd in attendance. The decorations were unusually lovely with a white picket fence surrounding the gym walls with lattice work of red carnations. The sky was of dark blue with stars surrounding the heavens. Behind the orchestra on the south west corner was a big silver moon surrounded with a darker sky dotted with stars. On the center south wall was an archway with "Senior Class of '45" in letters with a crepe paper bird bath beneath. On the northwest wall another arch with the junior class motto, "Climb though the path be rugged," resembling a moonlit garden. The senior girls wore red carnation corsages and the boys white carnations presented by the junior class. Ely's orchestra from Ione furnished the music enjoyed by all.

THE SPEED OF OUR SAWS is Tuned
to growth in our woods

THE RULES for a permanent forest operation, which means a sustained flow of payroll funds into the community, are relatively simple . . . timber land must be so harvested that it reseeds naturally, it must be protected from fire, and rate of new growth should be determined as a key to the number of logs which can be safely removed in any one year.

The integration of these factors with relation to a specific operation is called . . . a forest management plan, or just plain good business.

Our production of forest products is calculated in relation to growth of new wood in our forests . . . this will lengthen our operation and keep us from exhausting our tree capital.
