JEPPIES CROSSING RIVER TO SURRENDER TO YANKS CREATED AMUSING SIGHTS

Sgt Harlan McCurdy, writing from Germany where he is assisting in the job of keeping the conquered people as orderly as possible, witnessed some of the action which made interesting news stories in the days prior to nazi capitulation. He says:

"Think the funniest sight I saw, and was peculiar too, was looking across the Elbe at about 10,000 Jer-tos surrender to us before the Russies and all their equipment trying kies got there. We stood on the opposite bank looking at them. No force terms had been made but not a shot was fired. They tried every means they could think of to get over to our side and quite a few made it. Would be about like trying to cross the Columbia at Arlington when there is some water in the river. One guy was in his shorts, guess waiting for a good time to start across. Never saw such a conglomeration of stuff in my life as they had lined up on the far bank.

"We swept up the Pocket you read about in the paper. General Simpson gave us a nice letter of commendation for it. This damn pocket stuff got a little rough in places. Get a rat in a corner and he will fight, even if it looks hopeless. Hope we get back into military government for awhile, for that is not a bad job."

"This information was contained in a V-mail letter to Harlan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. McCurdy of Heppner.

On the left sleeve of the uniform worn by passenger conductors, brakemen and flagmen are the insignia indicating length of service; a star for twenty-five years, a bar for each five years.

The proud possessors of "stars and bars" help to form the solid foundation of a railroad's personnel. Because of their intimate knowledge of operating rules, equipment and facilities...the many situations and problems they have met and solved...they are of tremendous assistance to younger men.

Among the 65,000 Union Pacific employees there are approximately 7,000 "old timers"—representing all departments—with twenty or more years of service. These experienced employees have, in a large measure, been responsible for the enviable record maintained by Union Pacific in the face of wartime conditions.

The transportation of many thousand trainloads of troops and materials over the Strategic Middle Route, uniting the East with the West Coast, calls for the wisdom and cool judgment of maturity coupled with the ambition and tireless energy of younger employees.

Union Pacific is proud of all its employees, regardless of length of service, for the job they are doing to help speed the hour of victory.
