

Rules Laid Down For Bakeries in Wheat Saving Plan

Stringent regulations have been set for bakeries in the campaign to meet the demand for lower wheat consumption in this country and those dependent upon the local baker for bread will have to tighten their belts, so to speak. As is known around the White House, this is an emergency, and is not expected to last longer than is necessary to provide needed grain for starving millions of the war devastated countries. Be that as it may, there are certain regulations the bakers must comply with or run the risk of heavy fines.

First in line of lending aid, bakeries are reducing loaf sizes from the customary one and one-half pound unit to one pound. So far as can be seen now, the same number of loaves will be turned out but output demands can be met.

The Heppner bakery is in receipt of Bulletin No. 295 from the American Bakers association in which the following advice was given:

Bakery salesmen were told: "You must not replace stale or damaged bakery products with fresh goods, or in any manner give credit for such products."

Bakers and bakery operators were informed: "You must not allow your salesmen to engage in the illegal practice of consignment selling."

Grocers were informed they "must bakery products to replace or give credit for goods unsold, stale or damaged."

Bakers, salesmen and grocers alike were advised that conviction on violations of the regulations of the bakery order may mean "a fine of $10,000 or an imprisonment of one year, or both."

Nursing Profitable Field for Girls

most profitable field of profession—Nursing offers the biggest and al life for girls, with better opportunities for advancement and higher pay than ever before. This message was delivered to girls at the high school this week by Miss Guhli Olson, staff member of the University of Oregon Medical school, department of nursing.

In practically every field of specialized nursing, the demand for college trained professional women is far greater than the supply, Miss Olson said.

Girls planning to go to college can take two years of the pre-professional curriculum on the campus of their choice and then spend thirty months in the professional curriculum at the Medical school department of nursing. This program earns them a Bachelor of Science degree. It opens every home may have a Robotine, the kitchen mechanic that shoots dirty dishes from the dining room table to the steam cabinet and back into the cupboard.

But in 1946, we still have to save used cooking fat to make soap for washing dishes. Use and re-use food fats and then turn them in to your meat dealer for four cents a pound to make soap and other household essentials. Fats and oils are short the world over. By conserving fats you help to feed the starving millions.
